TRAIN KEEPS ROLLIN'

A map showing four different proposed routes for relocating CSX's railroad tracks. Currently, much of the track goes through the downtown areas of the coastal cities. The original plan was to relocate the tracks north of I-10 to get trains away from crowded downtown areas.

TRACKS MAY STAY DOWNTOWN AFTER ALL

Railway public hearing leaves more questions

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

An informational meeting held at the Bay St. Louis Train Depot Thursday afternoon by representatives from DMJM Harris, Inc., who are studying the feasibility of an alternative railroad route, might have created more questions than it answered for many in attendance.

A map showed several alternative route corridors from just south of I-10 to the very northern edge of the Red Creek Wildlife Management Area in Stone County and several locations in between. All the routes veered south through the western side of the state to join the coast railroad at Port Bienville. The cost of the project would vary according to corridor, from $1.8 billion to $2.7 billion.

Some questioned the need to spend billions of dollars to build an alternative route that will leave many coastal business who now depend on the railroad without services.

The feasibility study will look at this problem, said project manager Barry Brupbacher, to decide which businesses will go and which will remain.

Hancock schools hit with $323K insurance bill

Workers' comp premium up $149,000 from last year

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

The Hancock County School District will pay a premium of approximately $323,000 for worker's compensation insurance for the 2003-2004 school year.

Last year the district paid approximately $174,000.

The Hancock County School Board received a notice dated May 12 that its worker's compensation insurance carrier, Bridgefield, planned to terminate its contract with the district as of June 30 because of "an unfavorable loss experience."

Cheryl Bennett, board president, said the district had experienced escalated claims for worker's compensation over the last several years but had decreased last year.

The district had been with Bridgefield for the past three years.

This issue had been brought before the board during its June 5 meeting and tabled for the June 26 meeting.

Mississippi Assigned Risk will now serve as the worker's comp carrier. The district's general liability and automobile insurance will continue with Zurich at approximately $139,000 for 2003-2004. Last year the premium was $123,000.

Two board members in particular voiced their concerns about the whole issue.

"I was not aware that our worker's comp claims were so high that our coverage may not be renewed," said Peggy Ladner, District 4 member.

She claimed there was a failure of communication between the administration and the insurance agent and the board that

'What can the board do? Nothing. We are at the mercy of the insurance carriers.'

Bay couple wins national car contest

Competition took place in U.S. 'alien' capital

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

Jaime and Gregory Noll beam with pride as they each hold first place trophies featuring plastic, green aliens.

The young Bay St. Louis couple recently returned from the annual Roswell 2K New Beetle Weekend Car Show in New Mexico, which was held last week.

Jaime, a New Orleans native, took top prize for her Volkswagen Beetle in the 2002 stock division while her Reno, Nev., born husband claimed first in the 1998 custom division.

It was their fourth year to attend the car show — and their luckiest. Gregory had not won an award since receiving third place three years earlier, and Jaime had the privilege of winning first place the first year she entered her own car in the competition. She received her Beetle, which she named Twink, as a

Diamondhead Yacht Club offers July 4th Boat Parade

The Diamondhead yacht club will hold its annual 4th of July Boat Parade on Thursday July 3rd at 6:30 pm in the Diamondhead marina. This year will be a very special parade. The club is honoring returning men and women from the Iraq war. There will be members from each branch of the service represented riding on club boats. Leading the parade will be 2 navy assault boats from Special Boat Team 22 from Stennis. They will be in full combat gear and will simulate warfare demonstrations down the canal and in front of the yacht club. There will be an added surprise at the yacht club for the spectators. After the parade the navy boats will be docked at the marina for the public to view and ask questions. There will be decorated boats of all sizes following the navy. There will be judging for best decorated, most original and most comical. If anyone is interested in participating in the parade please sign up at the Diamondhead ship store or call Commodore Ray Sheehy at 255-6922. Anything that can float is welcome. Bring the family down to the yacht club and view this fun parade and stay and watch the Casino Magic Bay St. Louis fireworks afterwards.

Cumella named new St. Clare principal

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus
St. Clare School in Waveland will begin its 40th session in August and will have a new principal, Rev. Msgr. James McGough announces.

Mark Cumella of Bay St. Louis was recently named to head the Catholic Elementary School which began its operation in 1964.

Cumella is a graduate of Oakdale High School, Oakdale, La., and received his bachelor's degree from Louisiana State University and a master's degree in Educational Administration from the University of Southern Mississippi.

Prior to being named St. Clare principal, Cumella was at St. Stanislaus College for 13 years, where he worked in several capacities, such as prefect, teacher, moderator, director of recruiting and assistant admissions director.

Cumella is married to the former Joan Dugas of Lafayette, La., and they are the parents of two sons, Gage, age 7, and Zachary, age 5.

St. Clare this year will introduce Pre-Kindergarten for three-year-olds as part of its Christian and educational formation along with its Pre-K-4 through sixth grades.

St. Clare is a member of the National Catholic Educational Association and is approved by the Mississippi State Department of Education.

MARK CUMELLA

The curriculum consists of religion, language arts, mathematics, computer technology, science, social studies, art, music and physical education.

Traditional academic instruction is implemented creatively with hands-on activities, computer applications, and outdoor math and science labs to enhance the curriculum.

A unique feature of St. Clare is the small number of students in a class which encourages personal attention.

St. Clare is a school filled with joy, spirit and peace offering students many opportunities both inside and outside the classroom leading to a future of hope within a religious environment.

Applications are now being accepted for the 2003-04 session, for more information, call 228-467-7071, or e-mail stclare@data-syn.com.

Area reopens to shrimp

The following area reopened to shrimping activity, effective Saturday, June 28, at 6 a.m.

All waters west of the Gulfport Ship Channel including waters north of the Intracoastal Waterway.

Sampling has indicated that the shrimp in this area met the legal minimum size of 68 shrimp per pound.

All waters east of the Gulfport Ship Channel that are north of the Intracoastal Waterway remain closed.

The Department of Marine Resources will continue sampling this area and will reopen when the legal minimum size of 68 shrimp per pound has been met.

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the state by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes. Local blood drive to be held June 30

The Blood Center will be "Celebrating Life" at an upcoming blood drive in an effort to increase blood supplies as the July 4th holiday approaches.

A special recognition item will be given to donors to thank them for their generosity and commitment to saving lives in our community.

Traditionally during the summer month there is a decline in donations but an increase in transfusions, making it difficult to maintain a stable blood supply. As the area's largest supplier of blood and blood components, critically low inventory levels at The Blood Center could mean that the transfusion needs of area patients may be jeopardized.

As a non-profit community service organization The Blood Center depends on the generosity of volunteer blood donors to help supply the more than 40 hospitals in South Louisiana and the Mississippi Gulf Coast with the blood components needed for area patients.

To adequately supply the community, The Blood Center tries to keep a three-day supply of 1,200-1,400 pints of blood on the shelf – that means they must collect 350 pints a day.

The Blood Center invites those 17 years of age and older, weighing at least 110 pounds and in good health to donate blood at the following locations: (Donors need picture I.D.)

Get ready for 55th Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo

It's time get that fishing equipment in shape for the 55th Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo.

This is a fishing rodeo that brings folks from many states to the Mississippi Gulf Coast each year.

This is a four day event which goes on Thursday, July 3; Friday, July 4; Saturday, July 5; and Sunday, July 6.

Headquarters is the Rice Pavilion, Gulfport, at the head of Highway 49 on the Beach.

Competitive fishing begins at 12 a.m. on July 3 and competition includes both fresh and saltwater varieties. Most important of all, there are lots of great prizes.

One of the requirements is that participants register before they begin fishing and registration is free.

There will be daily prizes in addition to the final fishing prizes on Sunday.

Each day there will be live entertainment and many folks visit just to see the fish caught in the competition. Among the scheduled bands include: Out of the Blue, Eddie McDaniel, Danny the Cajun Man, Out Rider, Southbound, Magnolia, Finishes, Chuck Ryan, and Garland Moran and the Night Travelers.

On Saturday there will be a Kids Fishing Rodeo, ages 4 to 12, which begins at 6 a.m., or sun up and scales close at 5 p.m. for the Kids.

Best of luck to anglers of all ages. On Tuesday we begin the second half of 2003. It seems we were just celebrating the new year.

I am happy to say I am not the only one who feels this year is buzzing by. There are just so many things happening in our community.

New businesses opening, new folks moving to town and many events of various types going on just about every day. I guess it all could be referred to as growing pains.

Protecting children, helping parents

I was pleased to join the Mississippi-based American Family Association (AFA) in voicing support of existing laws that require libraries receiving federal funding to install anti-pornography filters, or risk losing federal funds. In a 6-3 decision the U.S. Supreme Court agreed, and ruled that such laws do not violate the First Amendment and are constitutional. It is a victory for parents, for taxpayers and ultimately for our children.

From the Senate

By U.S. Sen. Trent Lott

to protect children from getting Internet pornography at public libraries, and to prevent them from being exposed to this material by adults using the libraries. Of course, some left-wing groups challenged the laws in court. Seems these "civil libertarians" are protecting choices for underage children, but not for their parents or taxpayers. Court, not Congress, was the opponents' chosen option because Americans and the Congress that represents them overwhelmingly believe that publicly-funded school or community libraries should be porn-free environments.

With some polls showing as many as 92 percent of Americans in favor of the filters, it's pretty clear that a majority of taxpayers do not want to subsidize porn with their tax dollars, especially at a place where their children are supposed to be receiving a legitimate education.

Congress enacted these laws because we see this not so much as a political issue, but as a parenting one. It's tough to raise children today, especially for parents trying to give their children a childhood consistent with the traditions and standards of their own upbringing, or by ways prescribed by their religious faith.

It was hard to raise children back when I raised mine, and as I look at my young grandchildren today, I have serious concerns about the pressures they will face growing up.

The trials and temptations our grandchildren will undergo far eclipse those experienced by their parents just a few years ago, and are infinitely more daunting than what my generation faced.

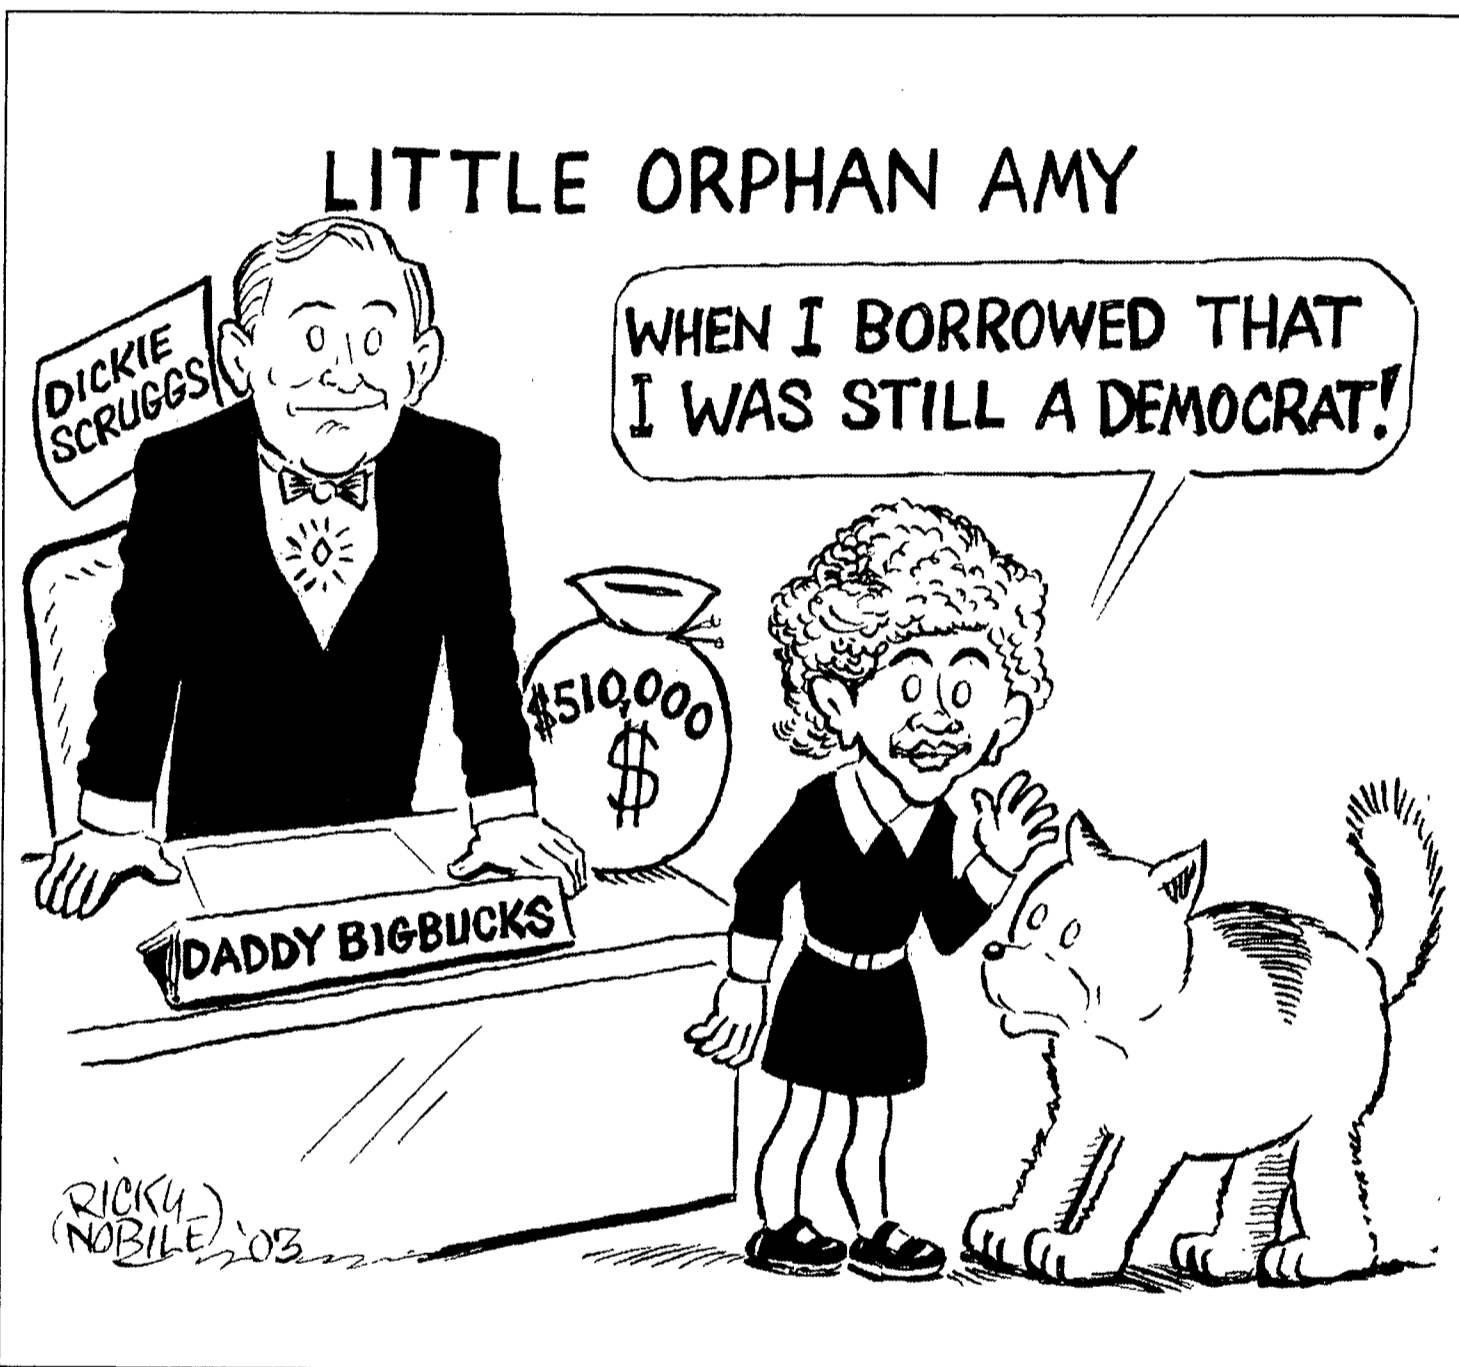

These filters - while not perfect - will help curb those

July 3 is deadline to register to vote

The Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee is reminding all residents of Hancock County and the state of Mississippi that the last day to register to vote in the 2003 Democratic Primary is Thursday, July 3.

The Primary is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 5, with runoff elections set for Tuesday, Aug. 26.

The General Election will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 4.

Every US citizen in Mississippi is entitled to vote provided he/she meet the following requirements:

- An inhabitant of Mississippi, except those declared judicially mentally incompetent;
- At least 18 years of age or will be by the date of election;

- A resident of the state, county, and supervisor's district for at least 30 days; and
- Has never been convicted of any crime listed in Section 214, Mississippi Constitution (murder, rape, bribery, theft, arson, obtaining money or goods under false pretenses, perjury, forgery, embezzlement, or bigamy.)

Residents must register to vote at least 30 days prior to the election. To register contact either your county Circuit Clerk at the County Courthouse or Municipal Clerk at City Hall.

For further assistance contact Betty Tolar at 467-0350 or Tere Carlin at 586-1089.

Kiwanis Club expands, changes meeting place

The Kiwanis Club of Hancock County, under the auspices of Kiwanis International, has officially changed its organizational name to "Kiwanis Club of Hancock/West Harrison.

The change will enable the club to more aggressively seek new membership in the Henderson Point/Pass Christian/Delisle area, and to actively involve businesses, schools, and other organizations in the area in Kiwanis' "Terrific Kids" program and other Kiwanis-sponsored projects.

Several members of the club who currently reside in West Harrison suggested the change.

The club has also changed the location of its weekly luncheon meetings. The club will meet each Tuesday at Court Street Station LLC, 200 South Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis, from Noon to 1 pm.

A buffet luncheon will be available during the meetings, and each meeting will feature a guest speaker.

For additional information, contact Ted Stechmann at (228) 467-4118, or online at Ted1939s@aol.com.

pressures, ensuring that our children are looking at something worthwhile at a public library. Since the explosion of the Internet in the mid-1990s, Congress, the American people, educators and parents have struggled to maximize the Internet's educational potential, while managing its many pitfalls. The Internet is fast becoming the embodiment of all human knowledge.

Information about virtually everything can be easily found with the stroke of a few keys - and I mean everything. Because it cannot easily be regulated, some content on the internet is actually illegal material, clearly obscene by even the most liberal definitions.

Filters, most of which block access to specific web sites based on key words, are the best way to shield children from inappropriate material at public libraries. Because the filters are triggered by certain words, they do sometimes block access to legitimate sites, and the law's opponents tried to seize upon this to kill the law. However, these instances are by far the exception to the rule. It is very unlikely that a filter will block a child from getting needed information on American history, mathematics, civics, or any other topic relevant to elementary or secondary education. As the Court concluded, library users may still ask library staff to disable filters for a legitimate reason, thus ensuring First Amendment access while helping to ensure that unrestricted access is not obtained by children.

This was a good decision by the Supreme Court that will protect our children, and it will help ensure that our tax dollars are not paying for porn at public schools and public libraries. The Internet is an unsurpassed educational tool, but its dark side can forever scar children if left unchecked. Most American taxpayers don't want to subsidize pornographers with their tax dollars. Most parents don't want children accessing pornography at school or public libraries. I'm glad the high court agrees with most Americans. Given the type of obscene material easily available on the Internet, what kind of person wouldn't?

Salvatore 'Sam' Benigno family to reunite on July 4

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus

The original Benigno family to arrive in Bay St. Louis' decedents will hold a family reunion on July 4, at the Diamondhead Country Club.

Salvatore (Sam) Benigno arrived in United States in October, 1897, from Monreale, Sicily, then later in Bay St. Louis. He married Frances Noto, originally from Plamero, Italy.

The family resided on Felicity Street in Bay St. Louis and were the parents of five sons and four daughters.

Only one son, Charlie Benigno of Bay St. Louis and two daughters, Gloria Landry of Diamondhead and Anna O'Donnell of Chicago are survivors of Mr. Benigno.

Sam Benigno's decedents are spread across the country, according to son Charlie.

They are expecting at least 100 to attend the family reunion.

Sam Benigno raised his family on his Bay St. Louis truck farm, even though none of his children took up that career.

Daughter Mary Vassalli and her husband Alfred, owned the Sanitary Bakery, corner Washington and Hancock St.

Charles (Charlie), retired from Jim Walter Corporation as main branch manager for five counties.

Son Joseph was a fisherman out of Pass Christian. Anthony retired as an employee of the City of Bay St. Louis.

Sam, Jr. had retired from Exxon Mobile in Houston.

George Benigno had retired from the Standard Manufacturing Company of New Orleans.

Mr. Sam, Sr. died at the age of 81 in 1956, his wife died on April 13, 1988, at age of 97.

Charlie said his mother had never been to a doctor in her life. For the birth of her nine children, she was attended to by a Black Midwife named Rose of Bay St. Louis. He could not recall her last name.

"a problem was coming."

She said nothing was brought to the board in time to address the problem, like hiring a risk manager or a company to monitor the claims.

"The increase is a waste of taxpayer funds and should have never had to happen," said Larry Seal, District 5. "The last few years have been unprofitable for Bridgefield and they certainly are in business to make a profit with our district, but we should have been given a chance to turn the thing around."

Superintendent of Education Mike Ladner said the board could not have influenced Bridgefield's decision.

"What can the board do? Nothing," he said. "We are at the mercy of the insurance carriers."

Ladner also said the administration informed the board when it was informed about the coverage's termination. He said a big factor in the numerous losses, in his opinion, were employees and doctors who abuse worker's compensation. He said some employees have told him that some doctors have asked them if they wanted to be on worker's compensation. Ladner said doctors should not offer worker's compensation as a choice, but rather use it for patients who truly need it.

"People who abuse worker's comp hurt fellow employees because that money could be used for pay raises," he said. "They are stealing money from the taxpayers of Hancock County."

In other business, the district conducted a public hearing where it presented a $35,944,677.47 budget for the 2003-2004 school year. This is an increase of $492,117.85 from last year's budget. Budget changes included revised salary scales for all employees, additional teachers and bus driver for new student growth, textbooks and new buses. The district's expenses are budgeted as follows:

- 48.01 percent — instructional
- 7.10 percent — student and instructional support
- 8.08 percent — administration
- 8.89 percent — operation and maintenance
- 5.22 percent — transportation

- 6.64 percent — non-instructional (cafeteria, parent program, public relations)
- 3.04 percent — construction and renovations
- 10.25 percent — debt services
- 2.77 percent — other (transfer of funds)

The total expenditures are broken down as follows:

- Salaries and benefits — $19,660,516.74
- Professional/Purchased services — $3,610,573.53
- Supplies/Equipment — $2,841,949.83
- Construction — $950,000
- Debt Services — $3,205,540.71
- Other objects and financing uses — $1,002,837.43

Tracks -- relocation?

"And who will decide this," asked one resident.

Others expressed a concern that if the route along the south side of I-10 were used that there would be too much danger of toxic spills along the busy corridor.

"We already have a railroad hauling toxic chemicals in that area everyday to DuPont," said another resident. "Are you planning to eliminate that rail service?"

"No," said Brupbacher.

"Then isn't it true that there will still be a railroad through Bay St. Louis," asked the man.

"We don't know where the existing railroads will be left in service at this time," said Brupbacher.

Funding for the two-year, $4 million study is being provided by the Highway Trust Fund, with one of the purposes for the funding to be to look at the possibility of creating a new right-of-way south of the I-10 corridor along the coast, by relocating the existing railway through Bay St. Louis, said the man.

downtown areas.

Planners have also stressed increased safety as a reason for the move. Any new routes would have minimal contact with roadways, they say, with either railroads passing over roadways or roadways passing over railroads.

If things go along in the best possible way, with everything going exactly as planned, said Brupbacher, the project would take nine or ten years to complete. This would mean no obstacles to obtaining needed rights-of-way and no questions about environmental issues or other problems.

Project contact information is available by calling Wilkinson or Brupbacher at 228-864-2240 or accessing the project website at www.makingtracks.org. The website was under repair on Friday but when up and running, maps of the proposed alternative routes will be available.

Christmas gift last year.

Jaime's car won judges over with a cuddly Care Bear theme. For Gregory, the victory was achieved through several years of custom work. His Beetle, named Love Machine, has a custom interior paint job, a roof rack, ground effects, leather seats, custom gauge pods and a fiberglass headliner. He believes the headliner, which looks like bubbles dripping across the inside roof of his car, impressed the judges most. Jaime hopes to begin customizing her car as well — beginning with a headliner like her hubby's.

The couple, who will celebrate their second anniversary in November, drove the 2,400-mile round trip to New Mexico as part of their vacation.

"It's neat riding around with 200 other Beetles," Jaime said. "It's nice to have a common interest with so many other people."

Jaime's interest in the curvy Volkswagens began when early in her life.

"I've always loved Beetles," said the 22-year-old, who used to drive a 1966 Beetle to high school.

At age 26, Gregory fell in love with the vehicles when he bought his in 1998. The car show only deepened his passion. He has done all the custom work himself, with the exception of the paint jobs.

Jaime said her husband now wants a convertible Beetle.

Cochran announces over $46 million for military construction projects in Mississippi

The Senate Appropriations Committee has approved over $46 million today for military construction projects in Mississippi, according to Senator Thad Cochran (R-MS) who is a senior member of the Committee.

Senator Cochran said, "this bill will help ensure that our military bases and training centers are well equipped to meet the needs of today's military forces."

The fiscal year 2004 Military Construction Appropriations bill includes $7.4 million for building a runway and $7.7 million for

The bill also provides $4.7 million for construction of a new Army National Guard maintenance facility at Gulfport, and it includes funds for planning and design of new Army National Guard Readiness Centers in Monticello and Pascagoula.

The Committee approved $4.6 million for the construction of a new Fire and Rescue Station at Meridian Naval Air Station and $6.1 million to build a Littoral Surveillance System Joint Harbor Operations Center at Naval Station Pascagoula. This surveillance system is part of a national security network for tracking air, sea and land activity.

Funding in the amount of $5.5 million was provided for a new Air Control Tower at Columbus Air Force Base. The Committee also approved $6.7 million for a new hangar and $2.9 million for a Child Development Center at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi.

The bill will now be, considered by the full Senate.

'Eight and Forty' working to help kids

The La Boutique des Huit Chapeaux et Quarant Femmes (Eight and Forty) is a subsidiary of the American Legion Auxiliary. The National organization was founded in 1922 and the objectives were fellowship and fun. In 1924 service was added to their objective - "such service to be particularly concerned with child welfare". In 1928 the National Executive Committee of the American Legion added a representative from the Eight and Forty to the advisory members of the National Child Welfare Committee. The Eight and Forty Child Welfare assignment comes directly from the National American Legion organization.

The obligation of each partner belonging to the Eight and Forty is to faithfully promise to do all in their power to uphold the ideals and principals of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary; to strengthen the ties that bind them to their parent organizations, to promote good fellowship, and to assist in the prevention and control of tuberculosis, cystic fibrosis, lung and other respiratory diseases in children.

The Eight and Forty is a non-profit organization and all funds derived from its fund raisers are used to assist the children and promote their well being.

Harrison County Salon 218 consist of 45 partners local and state wide. These ladies qualified for partnership in the Eight and Forty by their membership in the American Legion Auxiliary, for not less than thirty six consecutive months, and by outstanding service to the American Legion Auxiliary. Partnership is by invitation only.

Several years ago, Salon 218 adopted three children in Bay St. Louis who suffer from Cystic Fibrosis and they assist with the cost of medications and recreation, they donate and mail 50 to 100 Ditty Bags (filled with activity items) to the St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Tennessee every Christmas, help fund Nurses Scholarships (specialized training in the treatment of lung and respiratory diseases), the American Legion Child Welfare Foundation, the National Jewish Center, the children's Recreation Fund, and the National Chapeau's All Partners Project.

Finance Chairman, Gratia Dresback spearheaded three fund raisers this year, a fish fry, garage sale, and a draw-down.

All were successful and went a long way in helping fund the Eight and Forty programs. The Salon also raffles items during the year.

Partners in Salon 218 are totally dedicated to their work in helping children with respiratory diseases.

$500 reward offered for info on Sea Coast Echo newsrack thefts

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Sea Coast Echo publisher Randy Ponder has offered a $500. reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for stealing a number of newspaper vending machines.

Newsracks have been recently stolen in the Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County areas.

Each machine is valued at about $400., making each crime a felony.

"People may think they are only taking a few dollars in coin," Ponder said. "But, in reality they are committing a felony because of the value of the racks."

A felony is punishable by fines and or prison time for each offense.

To report information on these thefts, you may contact the Sea Coast Echo at 228-467-5473; the Bay St. Louis Police Department, 228-467-9221; the Waveland Police Department, 228-467-3669; or the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, 228-467-5101.

Information may also be faxed to 228-467-0333 or via e-mail to: rponder@seacoastecho.com

BUSINESS NEWS

Mississippi continues to lose jobs

BY BARBARA POWELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS
WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi might be headed toward another record year for plant closures.

According to data released Wednesday by the Mississippi Manufacturers Association, the state is losing plants at the same rate it did in 2002, when a record number of manufacturers closed their doors.

Since the first of January, officials at 50 plants have announced their facilities were closing and taking 3,867 jobs with them, according to the association.

Last year, the state lost 117 manufacturers and 11,063 manufacturing jobs.

That announcement comes on the same day that the Federal Reserve cut short-term interest rates a quarter point to their lowest level in 45 years. Federal officials said in a statement that while the economy is showing signs of improvement, "The economy, nonetheless, has yet to exhibit sustainable growth."

Also Wednesday, the Commerce Department reported that U.S. factory orders for durable goods such as cars and appliances fell for the second month in a row. The drop surprised economists who had expected a 1-percent increase rather than the 0.3 percent decrease that occurred.

The decline indicates that the manufacturing sector, weak across the U.S. and in Mississippi, won't recover any time soon, and that the weakness in the sector is fairly broad based. Drops were registered for cars, machinery and computers, with the biggest decline in defense-capital goods orders.

"Mississippi, and the entire nation, is continuing to feel the effect of the downturn in the national economy," said Steve Hale, executive director of the Mississippi Development Authority. "Some companies are still cautious about investing in new expansions and locations until they see steady improvement in the overall economy."

In Mississippi, the furniture, electronics, auto supply, lumber, paper and textile/apparel industries are soft, said Jim Stronger, director of membership and educational services for the Manufacturers Association.

Mississippi continues to lose textile and apparel makers as more companies, pressured by cheaper imports, either eliminate jobs or move them overseas to cut production costs. Since January, 2000, 59 of these firms have cut almost 6,000 jobs, according to the Mississippi Development Authority.

Stringer said industries across the board are telling his trade group not to expect conditions to improve over the near term.

"Companies are getting leaner and meaner or they're consolidating," Stringer said.

International Paper announced the largest job cuts when it said it will close its Natchez paper mills at the end of this month and eliminate 640 jobs.

The company had already closed mills in Moss Point and Morton.

But for the most part, Mississippi has been hemorrhaging jobs from smaller factory closings, layoffs and cutting workers' hours.

Recently announced closures include: Garan Inc., a Starkville infant and children's apparel maker, which will close next month and take 182 jobs. Alcan Cable in Bay St. Louis is closing soon and eliminating 116 positions. Georgia Pacific Corp. recently shuttered its Oxford particle board plant and cut 170 jobs.

Many other companies that aren't closing are slashing work forces like Oxford Wire & Cable Inc. that recently laid off two-thirds of its 92 workers, blaming competition from Far East Asia where cheaper labor lowers production costs.

Some companies are choosing to furlough workers, either for short periods or indefinitely, continuing to pay benefits but not salaries.

"Companies still have their belts tight and they're waiting to see what shakes loose," Stringer said. "When that inventory gets off those shelves, you will see them pick back up."

Manager

Jimmy Johnson is taking on new responsibilities as the market manager for the Cellular South Bay St. Louis market. He joined the company in 1995 as an account service representative for the Gulfport market. He completed the management development program in 1999 and promoted to the position of market manager in 2000 for the Biloxi market. He will be responsible for the overall operations for this market.

Study says Mississippi needs more progressive tax system

BY EMILY WAGSTER
PETTUS
ASSOCIATED PRESS
WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A new economic study says Mississippi should make several changes, including eliminating some tax exemptions and making its income tax system more progressive.

"There are a number of myths floating around that ought to be exploded," said Charles Campbell, one of two Mississippi State University economics professors who conducted the study.

He said one common misconception is that poor people don't pay income taxes. Families making less than $19,000 a year provide 20 percent of the state income tax collections, Campbell said.

Mississippi has "one of the least progressive tax systems in the country," he said.

Campbell and Kathleen Thomas conducted the study for the Children's Defense Fund, a Washington-based advocacy group for poor children.

Oleta Fitzgerald of Jackson is the southern regional director of the Children's Defense Fund. She said lawmakers will have to consider tax increases next year to keep Mississippi's budget balanced without making deep cuts to social programs.

Gov. Ronnie Musgrove and the two Republican gubernatorial candidates, Haley Barbour and Mitch Tyner, have said they oppose any tax increases. Many legislative candidates are saying the same.

Fitzgerald said she hopes candidates will reconsider.

"We are hoping that as we move forward, our candidates will have guts that the governor of Alabama has had," Fitzgerald said.

Alabama's Republican governor, Bob Riley, is proposing a $1.2 billion tax increase to fend off sharp budget cuts. It would be the largest tax increase in that state's history.

Campbell said Mississippi could collect an additional $248 million a year by adding a new tax bracket for higher-end income tax payers.

Fitzgerald said lawmakers also should consider closing loopholes for corporate income taxes.

Mississippi, like most states, has struggled with a tight budget the last few years.

Isle of Capri Corp. reports higher quarterly earnings

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—The Isle of Capri Corp. has reported fourth quarter net income of $18.2 million, up from a net loss of $22 million for the same period in 2002.

For the three-month period ending April 27, the Biloxi-based casino company reported net income of 60 cents per diluted common share compared to the 78-cent per share loss in the fourth quarter of 2002.

"The Isle has held steady through this period of uncertainty," said chairman and chief executive Bernard Goldstein. "We do feel strongly that the economy will recover, therefore, we have been working hard to position ourselves to be prepared with both programs and products."

For the fiscal year that ended April 27, the Isle's net income was $45.6 million. That's compared to a loss of $35,000 for the fiscal year that ended April 28, 2002.

Isle officials said they are looking forward to hotel expansions at its Biloxi and Bossier City, La., casinos.

Construction of the new hotel tower and parking garage in Biloxi is expected to begin in January. The $79 million project should be completed by mid-2004.

The 265-room addition in Bossier City should be completed a few months earlier.

Isle president and chief operating officer John M. Gallaway said work at the two casinos created some business disruptions.

"Despite the economic climate couple with some construction disruption, the Isle of Capri persevered due to our strong brand and geographic diversity," he said.

The Isle is also making improvements to casino in Lake Charles, La., and Kansas City.

The company owns 15 casinos in Mississippi, Louisiana, Colorado, Iowa, Missouri and Nevada.

Ronald and Gloria Burlette of Kiln, right, were among the first people in line to meet artist Marty Wilson, left, at a poster signing event held at the Department of Marine Resources June 25 to promote sales of Mississippi recreational saltwater fishing licenses. Anglers who showed their valid 2004 fishing license received a signed poster.

Poster signing reels 'em in, breaks record

THE SEA COAST ECHO

License sales surged at the Department of Marine Resources (DMR) recently, causing yet another state record to be broken-but this one was not for a fish.

The Marty Wilson poster signing held at the DMR June 25 — just five days before 2003 recreational saltwater fishing licenses were to expire — generated record sales of 64 resident recreational saltwater fishing licenses in a single day.

A poster signing held last October at the DMR resulted in 59 licenses being sold in one day. Prior to that, the highest single-day sales of saltwater sportfishing licenses at the DMR was 15.

Of the 100 people who came out for the poster signing held at DMR headquarters on Biloxi's Back Bay, more than half bought their 2004 fishing license during the event.

When residents presented their valid 2004 Mississippi saltwater sportfishing license, they received the DMR's full-color saltwater fish identification poster and were able to meet and have their poster personally signed by the artist, Marty Wilson.

The DMR organized the event in response to a State Marine Patrol report that 25 percent of all violations in FY2002 were for the charge of fishing without a recreational saltwater fishing license.

The license is required for all recreational methods of finfish harvest in the coastal and marine waters of the state.

Licenses cost only $5.85 and are valid from July 1 to June 30 of the next year, yet fines for fishing without a license range from between $100 and $500.

The full-color poster features the artwork of Coast artist Marty Wilson and depicts more than 30 saltwater fish common to Mississippi waters.

An avid fisherman, Wilson grew up at his father's fishing camp on Point Cadet in Biloxi, trawling for shrimp and casting for specks.

The poster was designed for the DMR by Brandon Taylor of The Idea Company in Ocean Springs and includes a brief description of each fish, including scientific name, peak season, habitat, average size and characteristics plus interesting facts about various species.

Any person under the age of 16, residents 65 years of age or older, and residents adjudged totally service-connected disabled by the VA or 100 percent disabled through Social Security are exempted from obtaining recreational fishing licenses.

Temporary residents stationed at a military base in Mississippi can use a military I.D. to purchase a resident fishing license.

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the state by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes. Visit the DMR online at www.dmr.state.ms.us or www.dmr.state.ms.us for a list of licensing agents.

Bay nips Hancock in scrimmage

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Bay High Tigers and the Hancock Hawks squared off in a football scrimmage on Thursday at Tiger Stadium. The scrimmage was part of a new craze that has been catching on around the country. Several teams along the coast participate in a program that pits seven position players from each team against each other.

The idea of 7-on-7 became popular as the spread passing attack has received increased recognition. Schools like LSU, Ole Miss, and Mississippi State all have 7-on-7 camps for high school teams. USM in Hattiesburg may not be far away from having one in the future which would give a closer option to many schools along the Coast.

Hancock coach Andy Perniciaro stated, "This is a great tool for high school teams, especially those with a spread offense attack. It give the players an opportunity to get out of the weight room and practice plays and timing. Younger players also get more reps with this program."

The 7-on-7 game features wide receivers, quarterback, and running backs on offense while the defense counters with linebackers, cornerbacks, and safeties. These position players get an opportunity to develop their skills and reads in a relaxed atmosphere. Equipment and pads are not worn and the result is an improved and controlled two-hand touch system of football.

Bay High defeated Hancock 21-14 on Thursday to exact some revenge after Hancock nipped the Tigers the week before.

Lorenzo Lewis scored all three Bay High touchdowns on passes from Zack Perry. Daniel Spiers and Myron Fairley each scored for Hancock on passes from Robert Domke. No extra points are attempted in the game.

Bay High head coach Glenn Williams commented, "This program helps the players get more accustomed to the offense. The more repetitions that a player receives the better they will become."

"It gives the players a chance to be a cohesive unit. It also helps the younger player get more repetitions which helps the stability of the team. We have been to Ole Miss and LSU team camps this summer. In July we are headed to Mississippi State."

While there is not an official league along the coast for this type of program, there are rumors that one may be in place next summer.

The next game is scheduled for July 10 at Tiger Stadium against Ocean Springs.

Pascagoula Tee Ball Summer Slam 2003

On August 1, 2 and 3, a "Tee Ball Summer Slam 2003" tee-ball tournament will be held for six and under tee ball teams across the Gulf Coast region.

The tournament will be held at the Pascagoula baseball complex on Tucker Street.

All leagues and teams are welcome. The entry fee is $150 per team and birth certificates and proof of insurance will be required. For more information, contact Bill Glenn, 228-327-1671.1

Blue Glory is hot new vine

BY NORMAN WINTER
MSU Horticulturist
Central Mississippi
Research & Extension Center

A new vine in town this spring could change our landscape habits for a long time. The vine is called Blue Glory, known botanically as Thunbergia battiscombei.

We know thunbergias from the clock vine or black-eyed Susan vine Thunbergia alata and, of course, the Brazilian sky flower Thunbergia grandiflora.

The Thunbergia battiscombei is native to tropical Africa but is finding favor in the lower South as well. You may have already seen this vine and wondered what it was. The trumpet-shaped flowers have an intense, deeply saturated blue color with a bright yellow throat.

Blue Glory may be the perfect companion for the black-eyed Susan vine from the standpoint of color and bloom period. Just as the black-eyed Susan vine is finishing its peak performance in June, Blue Glory will begin to bloom and continue until frost. They may even be in bloom simultaneously for a short time.

Another outstanding attribute of Blue Glory is that growers and gardeners across the country are reporting it is perennial in zone 8. After dying when temperatures hit the 20s, it returns in the spring.

Whereas we may have to pamper the sky flower to return, the Blue Glory does so with ease. Who knows what it might do in North Mississippi, given good drainage and an added layer of mulch.

Some of our Mississippi growers produced Blue Glory for retail garden centers, as well as for the three official Mississippi Garden and Patio Shows held this spring in Gulfport, Jackson and Southaven.

Blue Glory produces light green, herbaceous stems that hold large 5-by-7-inch, heart-shaped leaves. The leaves are bright green and smooth-edged. Rather than growing alternately along the stem, these leaves grow directly across from one another.

From the axils, where the leaf attaches to the stem, arise clusters of interesting, 1-inch long, hairy, white flower buds. From these emerge the intense blue-purple, trumpet-shaped flowers that create such a stunning sight against the

Lost Communities OF HANCOCK COUNTY

Hazel Necaise recalls her childhood without the frills

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Long before 1699 when explorer Jean Baptiste Le Moyne first set foot on the land he named Bay St. Louis, Hancock County was a part of the Choctaw Nation and inhabited by an Indian tribe who were called the Chicapoula.

Later that year a few families, a sergeant and 15 enlisted men to guard those first settlers, began to build their homes on the shores of Bay St. Louis.

In 1763 the British gained control of the area from the original French settlers. In 1812, two years after the United States assumed control, the area from the Bay of Biloxi to the Pearl River was named Hancock County after the president of the Continental Congress and signer of the Declaration of Independence, John Hancock.

The county has been losing ground, literally, ever since, the most recent loss taking place in the early 1960s when the federal government seized thousands of acres in the Western part of the county to build Stennis Space Center, displacing families who had lived in the area for generations.

Hazel Necaise, of Pearlinton, was born in Westonia, one of six children of Velma and Charles Ruffin. Life was simple back then, she remembers, no cars, no television, no electric lights, no inside plumbing, none of the amenities that we have all come to take for granted.

"Kids these days couldn't survive," she said. "No one had electricity, not just us and we had to do our homework by an old oil lamp or the light from the fireplace."

Life for children was very slow paced, she said, a birthday party, a day spent playing in an old abandoned box car that became a house.

"At Christmas time mama and daddy would come home with apples and oranges that they would hide for us to look for," she said. "I remember that they smelled so good and we couldn't wait to find them."

One year a friend received something special, a lovely china doll for a Christmas present, Miss Hazel said, and she brought it out to the boxcar to play.

Hazel Necaise lived a lot of her life in Westonia, moving for a short time to live near her husband's family just outside of Gainesville. "It was the saddest day," she said of the day in 1961 when people learned they had to give up their homes and make way for Stennis Space Center.

school, she remembers, and Dad Watson, they called him, drove the school bus.

"The ride to school seemed like it took forever," she said.

The school bus was just about the only ride that most people got back then. Miss Hazel's parents walked everywhere they went, she said, and never did drive. She hasn't either.

'They call him Mr. Mellow' – quite rightly

Stella left me. Actually, just for two weeks - a cousin's wedding in New Hampshire, but it has been a traumatic two weeks.

I had told everyone I knew that Stella would be gone, figuring supper invitations would pour in. But by supper time the first night, there were no phone calls. I braced myself, took out one of two frozen meatloaves Stella had left me and stuck it in the microwave. I got a pepper and a tomato out of the garden, cut them in large chunks and covered them with mayonnaise. Voilà! Salad. There was a gallon of sun tea in the refrigerator, so with a tall glass and ice I had my drink. It began to look like things were going to be easier than I had thought.

After supper, I went out on the porch and I sat with coffee and ice cream (Stella had left a gallon of home-made butter pecan and another gallon of lemon sherbet). Jennie, our gray hound (not a greyhound), came out with me and lay down. Holly, our black tom, came around the corner of the house and lay down near her. Together, we watched the sunset.

Then Jennie and I went back inside, leaving Holly outside to watch for burglars, and picking out a movie. The Gladiator, settled down for the evening. At ten thirty, I started locking up for bed. When I got to the front porch sliding door, Holly was there waiting patiently. I opened the door and he walked in, evidently prepared to stay inside for the night.

Let me explain. Holly is a big cat now and seldom stays in at night. When he does, we usually lock him up in the kitchen with a litter box in the back hall. But Holly has changed of late. Sure, he is still as irritatingly independent as ever, sleeping on my desk on top of my papers rather than on the expensive faux marble windowsill I had installed for him.

But he has changed; there is no question of it. He doesn't tease Jennie as much, only occasionally taking a swat at her rear end in passing. Sometimes, like when we were out on the porch, the two of them will lay companionably together. Small things, but they are there and I notice them.

Someone once told me that dogs had owners, cats had staff. Well, lately Holly is starting to recognize the existence of his particular staff members. Stella has asked me to be patient with him and I have been trying. I watch Holly and I find at times that it appears that he is trying as well.

Now he was asking to be allowed in for the evening.

After letting him in, I went around turning off the lights. I left Holly to fend for himself, ignoring putting out his litter box.

Views -- Mr. Mellow

The box is really just for show. Stella has bought two litter canisters in the three years we have had Holly and the second canister is still two thirds full. I figured if Holly wants out, he'll let me know. I headed for the front bedroom. I had decided to sleep there rather than the master bedroom in the back as a statement of my being truly on my own.

I got in bed and heard Jennie lie down on her rug at the foot of the bed. Then silence. Then when almost asleep I feel a plop! Holly had joined me in bed! He curled up by my calf and I noted his warmth there for a few moments, it felt good, and then I was asleep.

The next morning, I staggered out of bed. I was exhausted. The picture I have had of Holly sleeping in a fixed position, not moving for hours at an end was gone. Every fifteen, twenty minutes during the night, I had been awakened by a twitch, a turn, a paw over my leg, a dig to get under the leg, a stand to look out the window, then a flop back down again.

I fixed coffee, some fruit, toast and some of Stella's pate (she had left me a pint) and went out to sit on the porch. Stella said the changes in Holly were good. "He's mellowing," was the way she put it. Applying my no-previous-cat-experience psychology to what had happened, I came up with the theory that the cat was missing Stella and was trying to get as close to me as possible for fear I would be gone as well.

Bluntly put, Mr. Mellow was becoming neurotic.

In my own way, I like Holly and, surprisingly, I find indications that he likes me. So that evening I took a sleeping pill and, when Holly leaped on the bed to join me, I was already half asleep. The next morning, I again found myself exhausted.

In addition to the usual turning, Holly several times had used my leg as a platform to leap to the dresser. He returned within an hour, wham, landing on the same leg. After a bit, the whole thing was repeated. Through all this, Jennie slept at the foot of the bed, her snores drowning my yells.

I took two sleeping pills the following night and awoke about 2:00 with Holly on my chest staring at me. He evidently wanted out. He got out! The sliding glass door to the bedroom looks out on a twelve-foot porch and when I released Holly, I noted that he just barely landed on the last two feet before dashing off into the dark. I went back to bed.

At 3:30 I was awoken by Jennie standing beside the bed, staring at me. In my sleeping pill-induced state, I thought she wanted out. I got up and groggily walked her to the door. She had no sooner stepped out when Bam! A bolt of lightning lit up the heavens and a tremendous clap of thunder roared across the sky. Rain was everywhere! Confused, Jennie tried to come back through the living room sliding door twenty feet to my right. I ran out in my undershorts and led her back to the bedroom door as more lightning, thunder and heavy rain filled every inch of the outside air.

As we went in, my leg was brushed by some rapid moving wet fur; Holly was coming in with us. I led Jennie back to the rear of the house and put her in the garage. When it thunders, she becomes irrational and, over the years, the only place I have found to put her is there. At 80 pounds, she isn't the kind of dog you want tearing around the house half-crazed with fear.

I dried myself, changed to a new pair of dry undershorts and headed back to the bedroom. When I climbed in bed I found it was soaked! Holly a wet ball of fur was lying in the middle of it.

Too Much! I delivered Holly back outside to sleep with the snakes and retired to the back bedroom.

Last night, Holly came back in the house. But, under his own volition, elected to sleep on the stool in the kitchen. Jennie slept in the back bedroom with me.

We all went to sleep accompanied by the thoughts that soon Stella would be coming home.

Westonia -- a simple life

many places to go," she said. "Mama and daddy would walk to the store owned by the Westons and then the store would deliver the groceries by horse and wagon.

We kids were never allowed to go to the store."

She remembers that her brother Bill had the first car in the family and would come and take them riding in his Model T.

Sometimes they would show a film at the Masonic Lodge, she said, but the real treat for the kids came every Sunday evening when Miss Hazel's daddy would take them all riding on the boat in the Pearl River.

"Not one of us knew how to swim, not even him," she said.

"My mama's sister lived in Hattiesburg and her family would come and stay with us for three or four weeks at a time," Miss Hazel said. "The men would set out cat fish lines and when they would get enough we'd have a fish fry on the river."

When she was about 15 or 16 years old she got married and moved up to live near Gainesville with her first husband Aaron Dawsey. After losing a first child, the couple had a daughter, but tragedy struck again six months later when Dawsey died.

Miss Hazel packed up and moved back down to Westonia to live with her parents and after about five years she married Genins Necaise, who made a living working at the shipyards in New Orleans. The couple had five children. Later the two "agreed to disagree" said Miss Hazel and went their separate ways. She packed the kids up, went home, and stayed there. She never remarried, but with 14 grandchildren, 21 great grandchildren and one great great grandchild, she is seldom alone.

Miss Hazel's children grew up much like she did, walking everywhere they went, with an occasional ride to places they couldn't walk to. They did learn to swim though, somewhere along the way.

"I went down to the river one day and they were jumping off the bridge," she said. "I didn't know they could swim till then."

For some reason the memory of a bar room at The Point, owned by a black woman called Minnie Mouchie sticks in Miss Hazel's daughter Connie's mind. Probably because she could go in there to get a coke. The family lived up near The Point at one time, said Miss Hazel.

When the announcement came that they would have to move, Miss Hazel said she remembers they said for everybody to meet up at the school on the corner there in Logtown (the new school).

"I was renting at the time and didn't own a place so we just moved to Pearlrington. Everyone was upset because they had to leave their homes, sell their homes, and no one was getting the money they thought they'd get. It was the saddest day of all."

handsome foliage.

Blue Glory is not fussy about soil as long as it is well drained. Feed with frequent, light applications of fertilizer with each flush of the brilliant blossoms. It will do best in full sun but will also thrive in morning sun and afternoon shade. Some suggest that this may be the ideal site in Mississippi. It is easy to propagate by cuttings, or divisions.

In addition to growing with the black-eyed Susan vine, also try it with mandevillas or allamandas for an exotic, tropical appeal. Trained to a trellis, it normally reaches 6 to 7 feet. It can, however, be left on the ground to form a mound.

Oddly enough, Thunbergia battiscombei is one of those plants that has not found its way to the normal reference books. In fact, not a single book I own has it listed. Nevertheless, all we can say is it is a great time to be a gardener and a plant explorer.

I have seen Blue Glory at several garden centers and expect it to hang around most of the summer. Look for it in areas with mandevillas, allamandas and passionflowers.

Saint Michael's College Book Award Given to OLA student

Miriam Elizabeth Ladner, daughter of Catherine and Luther Ladner of Joe's Bayou Road in Bay St. Louis, and a student of Our Lady Academy in Bay St. Louis, was named the year 2003 recipient of the Saint Michael's College Scholarship and Service Book Award. The award recognizes students who demonstrate a commitment to volunteerism and leadership through community service. Saint Michael's, located in the Burlington area of Vermont, was founded on the belief that serving others is part of its Catholic tradition, and through the award seeks to honor those who demonstrate the true spirit of volunteerism.

Award recipients, named at schools throughout the country, are high school juniors who are inductees of the National Honor Society or an equivalent school-sponsored honors organization. They must demonstrate a commitment to service activities in high school or community organizations, taking leadership roles in these activities.

Ladner was presented the book First They Killed My Father: A Daughter of Cambodia Remembers (HarperCollins 2000) by Loung Ung, a 1993 Saint Michael's College graduate who has become a widely acclaimed author. In First They Killed My Father Ung gives a powerful autobiographical account, from a child's perspective, of surviving captivity during the genocidal Pol Pot regime in Cambodia. She reveals an indomitable spirit in the face of unspeak-able suffering, including the loss of both her parents and two of her siblings. Ung has written a riveting memoir about a family's survival, and in turn, about the development of Ung's ongoing crusade for a landmine free world.

Saint Michael's College, founded in 1904 by the Society of St. Edmund and headed by President Marc A. vanderHeyden, has been identified by U. S. News & World Report for 13 consecutive years as one of the top 15 Master's Universities in the North. A liberal arts Catholic, residential college, located in Colchester, Vermont, two miles from the state's largest city of Burlington, Saint Michael's has 1,900 full-time undergraduate students, and another 650 graduate students and 200 international students, studying part time. Saint Michael's College was named in 2003 by Newsweek magazine a "Hidden Treasure," one of 30 colleges recommended most frequently by guidance counselors.

A1 Tree Busters
A new father and son company in Waveland provides a service that many people do not think about until hurricane season.
A1 Tree Busters, which opened March of this year, provides a variety of services including trimming trees, removing damaged trees and removing trees which may pose a threat to homes.
"Whether you want us to take down a tree or trim it up, we'll do it," said Donna Harris, the public relations manager and secretary.
Other services include fertilizing and feeding trees, selling firewood all year long and shaping palm trees. With 30 years of combined experience, A1 Tree Busters offers reasonable prices, free estimates and senior discounts.
Once A1 Tree Busters has finished a job, they clean up the property so no one knows they were ever there. They will even leave the wood there for firewood or take it away.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

IN THE KING'S NAME

THE ANCIENT KINGS AS SUCH WERE VARIED. NEBUCHADNEZZAR OF BABYLON AND ARTAXERXES THE PERSIAN WERE EACH "KINGS OVER KINGS" (EZRA 7:12; DAN. 2:37; II KINGS 24:17). HOWEVER, THE USUAL MONARCH OFTEN RULED ONLY ONE CITY. SOME OF THEM BEING LESS THAN THE SMALL VILLAGES BY TODAY'S STANDARDS. A MAN BECAME KING OF A NATION OR CITY EITHER BY APPOINTMENT, BY ONE WHO WAS HIGHER IN AUTHORITY (I SAM. - 9:16, 16:1, 19; II KINGS 23:30) OR BY THE POPULAR DEMAND OF THE PEOPLE (I SAM. 8:1-5; II SAM. 5:1-3; I KINGS 12:20; II KINGS 23:30) OR BY USURPING A THRONE, OR BY INHERITANCE. THE RESTRAINTS UPON A KING WERE THE FEAR OF GOD AND MAN. THE POPULAR WILL COULD NOT BE IGNORED! HOWEVER, THE KINGS DID LEAD A SHELTERED AND LUXURIOUS LIFE. IN VIEW OF THE ROYAL DUTIES REQUIRED OF THEM, BOTH PHYSICAL AND MENTAL, THE MORAL REQUIREMENTS DEMANDED A HIGH MEASURE OF INTEGRITY TO RULE WELL. MANY OF THE ATTRIBUTES AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS ATTRIBUTED TO NUMEROUS KINGS WERE REALLY CARRIED OUT BY A DESIGNATED SURROGATE, WHO DID THE ACTUAL STORMING OF THE BATTLEMENT WALL, OR CHARGED FEARLESSLY INTO AN ENEMY'S CAMP...ALL IN THE KING'S NAME! WHILE A KING REMAINED IN THE LUXURIOUS TRIPPING OF HIS PALACE...HIS APPOINTED SURROGATE, MANY MILES AWAY, MIGHT BE WEARILY APPROACHING A BATTLE WHERE HE IS DESTINED TO BRING...HONOR TO THE KING'S NAME!

God of history rules in spite of us

"Although I enjoy most of your columns, particularly in regard to dietary advices, I cannot stay without a sharp criticism about the way you describe the Louisiana Purchase from Napoleon 200 years ago as an act of 'God of History' with the underlying 'God Bless America'."

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"You seem to ignore all the crimes, murders and ethnic cleansings that followed the Louisiana Purchase at the expense of the Indians. Do you think of that as a 'God's blessing' too? Not to mention the previous ethnic cleansing by your British predecessors in Acadia, and later on by the Yankees in today's Louisiana against the Cajuns and against the blacks."

Having grown up colored 73 years ago in Lake Charles, Louisiana, I assure you the Yankees were not our problem. It was the local white populace there and throughout the South. Racism in the North was muted, covert, but it was there for the rabbit-ears radar of Negroes to perceive.

No, I do not ignore the crimes, murders and ethnic cleansings that followed the Louisiana Purchase at the expense of the Indians. I have spilled much ink about that on other occasions and will write more in the future. As you actually imply, the criminal part of the whole transaction was not in the purchase but in the mistreatment of peoples already residing in this land.

The only difference in understanding which we may have here is that the settling of pristine lands is not an evil in itself, but rather the way human beings have populated the globe since day one. Anthropologists all but give their blessing to some version of the Garden of Eden by assuring us that all human life came from one woman in Northeast Africa.

For instance, some people refer to American Indians as Native Americans. There are no Native Americans. The Indians are immigrants from Mongolia, having pursued the bison (buffaloes) across the 50 miles of the then-frozen Bering Strait some 15,000 to 35,000 years ago. So, they are Native Asians.

By the same token, there are no native Europeans, nor Asians for that matter. They, as all the rest of the world, are immigrants from that one northeast African woman whose bones anthropologists analyzed recently.

Naturally, it took a long time to colonize the world, and the wild tribal ancestors of the Germans, French and English which we read about in Caesar migrated to Europe from Africa, and had to start from scratch staking out their territories and their hunting grounds in competition with each other.

Inevitable turf jealousies and territory envy spawned ethnic dislike and triggered bloody clashes between the tribes. Yes, there was ethnic cleansing way back then too. The evil of colonizing was not in the staking off of territory, but in the cruel, immoral treatment of ethnic competitors.

And so it was throughout Europe, Asia and, finally, the New World. The lands of the world belonged to no one until staked off by individual peoples. Claiming lands where our American Indians were did not become an evil until we tried to run them off and curtail their freedom. I certainly do not condone any wrongs done to the Indians or to anyone else anywhere at any time. Furthermore, I have a personal stake in this, since my father's maternal great-grandmother was a Choctaw Indian whose prized photo we still possess. That puts me in the situation of a double whammy, being a descendant to two peoples who were subjected to brutal oppression.

Our acts are not acts of the God of History. God simply allows us to use our free will in whatever we do. Yet, God uses even the evil we do toward the accomplishment of good things, so much so that St. Augustine refers to the sin of Adam as a "happy fault," which we sing in the Easter liturgy:

"Oh happy fault which merited such a Redeemer." I speak against the heinous evils of slavery and racism daily, and write against them often. It is definitely true that slavery should have never been a part of human history anywhere. How is it, then, that I, a product of slavery, am so glad that I came to exist and that I am an African American? I consider my lot blessed, providential despite the fierce evils of slavery. Despite its indescribable evils, slavery brought us the blessings of the Negro Spirituals and, more than anything else, showed the whole world how to understand and imitate the life of the Messiah, God's suffering Servant.

Finally, I doubt seriously that there are many in this country who believe that we Americans have clean hands in our pursuit of establishing and maintaining our representative republic. Although we have helped many, we have much in our history to be ashamed of both at home and abroad.

Virtually every nation of the world has a lot of soul-searching to do with regard to their origins, development and ambitions.

We need God every day, every hour in our drive to find an accurate compass in life, an unfailing source of knowledge and wisdom, and the spiritual power to be and do good.

The "Word" for the Week

By My Spirit

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

We are all looking for strength, strength to live in a competitive, challenging, fast paced world.

We are told that to find real power for living, we should look within. We are told that we have all the resources we need within us. If we can only muster that inner strength, we will make it across the hurdles of life.

Well, I don't know about you, but I have come to the end of my rope more than once. I'm no pansy nor push over, but when the inner reserves are gone, they are gone. I've been to the place of mental fatigue, physical exhaustion, and emotional collapse.

At such times, if someone said to me, look within for the strength you need, my response would have been, I did, and it is all gone. No, at such times, my strength did not come from within, it came from without. Strength came from the Spirit of God.

The Bible makes it clear, "Not by might, nor by power, but by My spirit," says the Lord of hosts" (Zechariah 4:6).

You see, our problem is that we don't look to God for the strength to live day by day. We are so self-sufficient and independent; we think it is a show of weakness to pray or to depend upon God. But if there is one thing we need to learn in this life, it is that we are mortal.

We are limited in strength. We don't have all the inner power we are led to believe we have. When many people discover this, they give up on life. Many young people, for example, take their own lives. It is all so needless. Why? There is an unlimited source of power for living. It is not found within. Rather, it is found without. It is found within the living God, Creator of all things. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit," says the Lord of hosts."

St. Ann's -St. John's News

Fr. John Kelly, Pastor (228-467-4746)

Mass schedule as follows:
St. Ann Catholic Church, Lower Bay Road

Saturday Vigil Mass 5p.m.
Sunday Masses: St. John Catholic Church, Lakeshore Road, Mass at 8a.m. - St. Ann's-10:30a.m.

Weekday Masses (St. Ann's) Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday - 8:30a.m. - Wed. 6:30p.m. Visitors are always welcome.

There will be a CYO meeting, June 29 at 9:30 a.m. in the school building.

St. Ann/St. John Parish has seven young people making the trip to our Diocesan mission in Saltillo, Mexico. We have a list of items we need to collect. Please place them in the basket in the back of the church. (Off brands and Store brands are fine).

Small shaving cream, bars of soap, fingernail polish, children's vitamins, tooth paste, baseball caps, aspirin, pepto, tylenol, tooth brushes, individually wrapped hard candy.

Money donations are welcomed and greatly appreciated. Makes checks out to the "Saltillo Mission Fund". It costs $500 to build a house for a needy family in Saltillo. Any amount will be cherished and appreciated.

Rejoice

DECLARE INTENT TO LEVY 4 MILLS
FENTON FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT

Whereupon it was moved by Supervisor Lisa Coward, seconded by Supervisor Jay Cuevas, the adoption of the following resolution: RESOLUTION OF THE HANCOCK COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS DECLARING THE INTENTION TO LEVY FOUR (4) MILLS UPON EACH DOLLAR OF ASSESSED VALUATION IN THE FENTON FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT, HANCOCK COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI. Whereas, the Board of Commissioners of the Fenton Fire Protection District of Hancock County Mississippi at their meeting on May, 2003 by resolution unanimously adopted, requested the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to levy four (4) mills in accordance with Section 19-5-189 (2) (d), Mississippi Code of 1972 Annotated; and Whereas, the proceeds of said levy shall be used for the operation, maintenance and purchase of equipment for the Fenton Fire Protection District; and Whereas, the intention to levy the tax shall be published once a week for three (3) consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the county and having a general circulation therein and a copy of this resolution shall also be posted at three (3) public places in the county for a period of at least twenty-one (21) days during the time of its publication in a newspaper. If more than twenty percent (20%) of the qualified electors of the district shall file with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors, within twenty-one (21) days after adoption of the resolution of intent to levy the tax, a petition requesting an election on the levy shall not be made unless authorized by a majority of the votes cast at an election to be called and held for that purpose with the district.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi intends to levy four (4) Mills upon each dollar of assessed valuation in the Fenton Fire Protection District, proceeds of which to be used for operation, maintenance and purchase of equipment, effective January 1, 2003 pursuant to Section 19-5-189 (2) (d), Mississippi Code of 1972, Annotated, and that the Clerk be and he is hereby authorized and directed to advertise this resolution as set out in the foregoing. The matter then being put to a roll call vote, the result was as follows: Those voting Yes: Supervisors Lyonie Ladner, Rodrick Pullman, Lisa Coward, Steve Seymour and Jay Cuevas.

Those voting No: None. The motion having received the unanimous affirmative vote of all members of the Board, the President declared the motion carried this the 11th day of June, 2003. Published by Order of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors dated this the 11th day of June, 2003.

Casino Magic plans three-day July 4th celebration fireworks

Coasters, Drifters and Platters to rock the nights away in classic style

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Beginning July 3 with a free fireworks display at 9 p.m., Casino Magic Bay St. Louis kicks off the holiday with a bang.

First, the deluxe fireworks show will be choreographed to patriotic music and free to the public. Then July 4 and 5, "A Salute To America's Golden Oldies" will be split into two days. July 4, The Coasters, The Drifters and The Platters will perform all their hits in one show beginning at 9 p.m. July 5, the legendary ladies of the 50s rock era Lesley Gore, Peggy March, The Chiffons, The Angels, The Marvelettes and The Shangri-Las all perform on one stage.

Tickets for each show, sold separately, are $14.95, $19.95 and $24.95 and can be purchased at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or at any Ticketmaster location.

A Salute To America's Golden Oldies Friday, July 4 - The Gentlemen The Coasters are the supreme comedians of rock and roll. What's more, their impact has deepened with time.

Their songs, their parodies and the tunes that became million-selling records are revived in this new generation of music. The Coasters were the first vocal group to be inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. They have appeared in 6 major movies and have amassed over 100 million record sales in their career. And to this date, their act is one of the liveliest and funniest in show business. Their hits include "Charlie Brown", "Along Came Jones", "Yakety Yak", and "Love Potion #9".

The Drifters. The

Legendary Elsberry Hobbs performed on the greatest Drifter hits of all time from 1958 until his untimely death in 1996. Now, Hobbs' wife, Odessa Hobbs, has united many of late husband's former band members as the Elsberry Hobbs' Drifters to commemorate much of the great material to which he contributed so artistically. Elsberry Hobbs' Drifters blends a tasteful mixture of their million sellers with contemporary standards, all presented within the context of the Drifters famous patented choreography. Their hits include "There Goes My Baby", "This Magic Moment", "Save the Last Dance For Me", "On Broadway", and "Under The Boardwalk".

The Platters formed in 1953 and by 1955 recorded the ballad "Only You" which was the beginning of stardom for the group that was to become the most popular vocal group of the fifties. To date, they have four number one songs and sixteen gold records. They have toured in 75 countries across the world and still spend much time abroad. Playing venues from Madison Square Garden to the Bottom Line, the group is still delighting audiences on a regular basis.

In 1990 The Platters were inducted into The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Their hits include "Only You", "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes", "Ebb Tide", "Twilight Time", and "The Great Pretender". A Salute To America's Golden Oldies Saturday, July 5 - The Ladies Lesley Gore first entered the Top 40 charts with the #1 hit, "It's My Party", in May of 1963, just after her 17th birthday. She quickly racked up several more hit records as she became the standard bearer for teenage angst. Such Top 5 hits as "Judy's Turn To Cry", "She's A Fool", and "You Don't Own Me" united teenage girls around the world with someone who seemed to be going through the same things they were. Leslie recorded eleven Top 40 hits total, all before her 21st birthday. She continues to delight audiences around the world.

Peggy March had one big hit during her decade with RCA Records, and that was when she was 15 years old. But that song, "I Will Follow Him," spent three weeks at the number one spot on the charts and even topped the R&B charts for a week as well. Her subsequent hits, "I Wish I Were a Princess" and "Hello Heartache, Goodbye Love," also scored on the Top 40.

The Chiffons were one of the best early-'60s New York girl groups, combining sassiness and innocence on several of the style's greatest classics including their first number one hit "He's So Fine."

They followed that hit with the "One Fine Day," and later recorded other memorable hits "I Have a Boyfriend" and the Motown-influenced "Sweet Talkin' Guy".

The Angels' 1963 number one hit, "My Boyfriend's Back," is one of the half-dozen or so girl group classics.

Hand clap beats, sassy vocals, slightly campy lyrics, and an arrangement paced by wailing horns and street corner harmonies; it was a surefire hit. The Angels had actually been around for a while before "My Boyfriend's Back," making the Top 20 in 1961 with the ballad "Till," and the Top 40 with a follow-up, "Cry Baby Cry."

The Shangri-Las were the greatest girl group, combining an innocent adolescent charm with more than a hint of darkness, singing about dead bikers, teenage runaways, and doomed love affairs as well as ebullient high-school crushes. "Leader of the Pack," with its periodic motorcycle roars and crescendo of crashing glass, was the death-rock classic became the Shangri-Las' signature tune, reaching number one. They followed that with "Give Him a Great Big Kiss" and "I Can Never Go Home Anymore," a runaway tale that took their patented pathos to the extreme.

The Marvelettes were probably the most pop-oriented of Motown's major female acts, and they recorded Motown's first number one single, "Please Mr. Postman." "Postman," as well as other early-'60s hits like "Playboy," "Twistin' Postman," and "Beechwood 4-5789," were the label's purest girl group efforts. The Marvelettes also recorded such classic hits like "Too Many Fish in the Sea," "Don't Mess With Bill," and "The Hunter Gets Captured By the Game."

Spend a three day rockin' celebration July 3-5 at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis.

Must be 21.

Hancock's star is on the rise

County's population and economy are the fastest growing on the Mississippi Gulf Coast

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

On December 14, 1812 all the tract of land lying south of the thirty-first degree of north latitude and west of the line running due north from the middle of the Bay of Biloxi to the thirty-first degree of north latitude and east of the Pearl River became known as Hancock County. (Rowland, Dunbar, 1907)

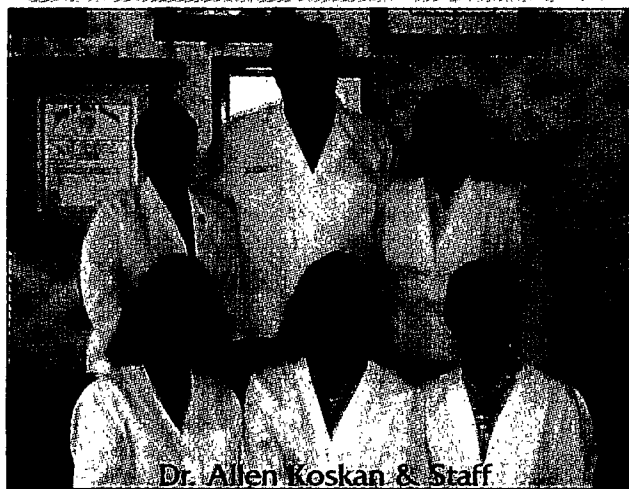

The territory encompassed the present limits of Hancock, Pearl River, Harrison and Stone counties as well as southern parts of Lamar, Forest and Perry Counties. The headquarters of the Choctaw Indian chief, Center, later Caesar, became the first county seat, mainly because that is where all the trails went and of course, at that time, there were no roads.

(Louisiana's Loss, Mississippi's Gain; the History of Hancock County, Mississippi From the Stone Age to the Space Age, Scharff and Ambrose.) In 1866 the county seat moved to Sieldsborough, now Bay St. Louis, and remains at that location.

The county was named in honor of John Hancock a signer on the Declaration of Independence, and no doubt, in honor of the independent spirit of the people who lived in the area and still do today.

For many years the county was a bustling center for the timber and paperwood industry, but still remained a sleepy, well kept secret from most of the world. When the federal government decided to locate Stennis Space Center here in the mid 1960's, the beautiful beaches, winding rivers and bayous, and lush green forest land were pleasant discoveries for the people that followed the industry, and the word began to spread that this was a nice place to call home.

Today, Hancock County is the third fastest growing county in the state. Over the past 30 years the population has realized a 25 percent growth rate every ten years. In the past ten years the population has grown by 35 percent. Today, one in every four people who live in the county have moved here in the last ten years.

Population in rural areas has actually surpassed that in the more urban areas of Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Kiln, Shoreline Park and Diamondhead and 42 percent of new homes built in the past ten years have been built in rural areas. The civilian workforce has grown by 3.5 percent in the past ten years, faster than any other coastal county.

To meet the demands of a growing population the county has to step up the pace of its usual live and let live attitude, and laid back approach to everyday life, and run headlong into the future.

One of the first steps has been to establish a county wide wastewater management project, which is well under way and making its way into rural areas, along with projects to provide a public water systems. Plans to build treatment plants in the west and north part of the county are well underway.

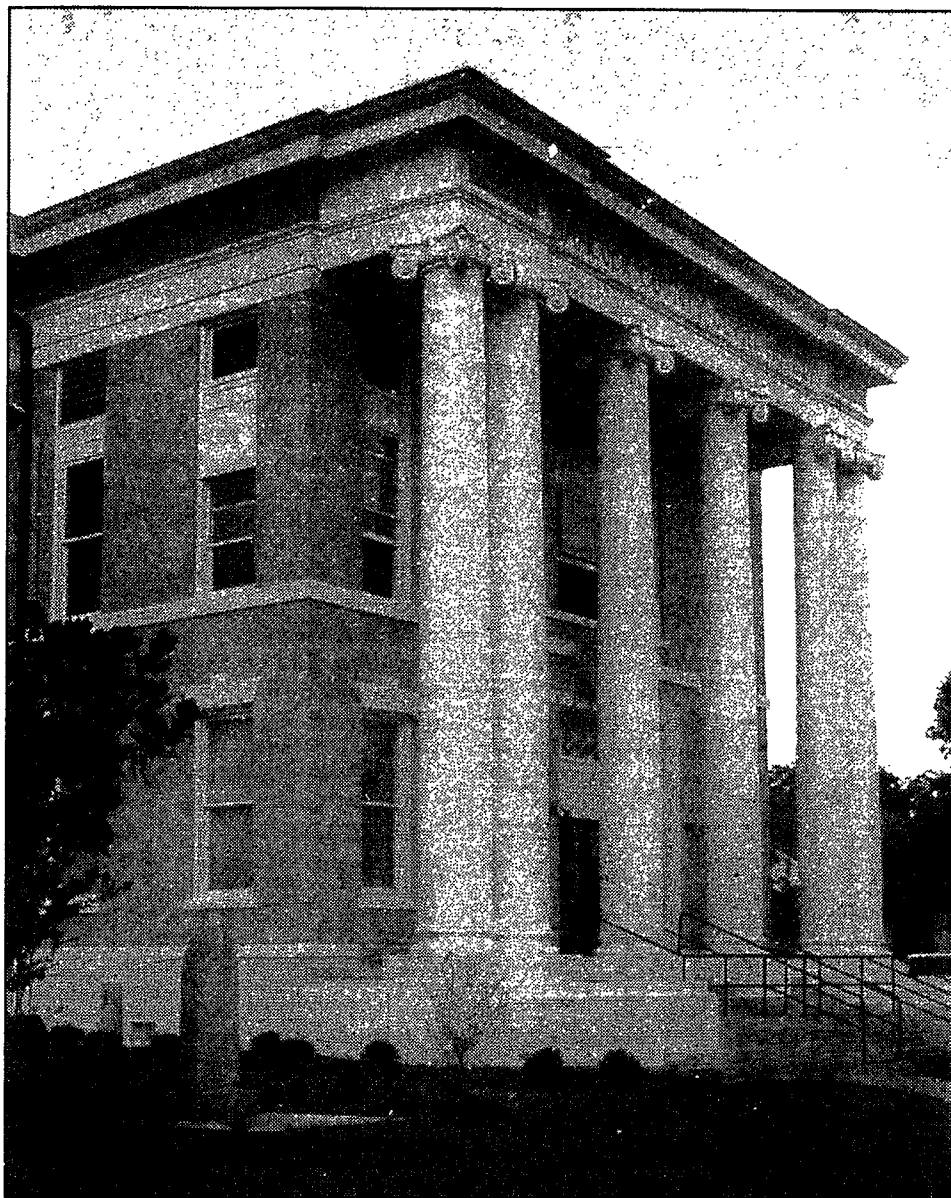

Likewise, the county has initiated a smart growth plan to ensure that growth is managed in an environmentally sound way. Sound plans to address stormwater run off and issues of air quality are being developed. The county is also supporting a greenways project to promote park areas, protect the habitats of local species of plants, animals and marine life and to ensure that the vistas that make our county special are protected.

The county is making an amazingly fast recovery from two back to back tropical storms last fall, which forced crews to do a whirlwind cleanup after one storm before the next one hit a week later.

A beach renourishment project is underway now to restore the beachfront. A bike beachfront path from Bay St. Louis to Waveland was completed last year and plans to continue the path are underway.

The county continues to seek dollars from the Tidelands funds and this year were able to make $435,000 worth of improvements to the Bayou Caddy Marina project, the Clermont Harbor Boat Launch, the Curtis Johnson Pier and the Dunbar Ave. Boat Launch.

Improvements continue at the almost new Hancock County Equine Facility and Livestock Arena and arena manager Wade Ladner has events lined up there for months to come. The county has also added a new bath house at McLeod Park and continues to make improvements to athletic fields throughout the county, also adding walking paths at many locations.

The county has added two new positions to its list of employees, A safety coordinator, Lynette Carbon, is now formulating a safety plan for each department. The position of Civil Defense director/fire Marshall and homeland security coordinator were combined and is filled by Brian Adams.

The Court House is also undergoing a $1.3 renovation this year and work should be completed early in the fall.

A major boon for the county came with the addition at Stennis Space Center of a new $30 million phase of Lockheed Martin which should provide 200 to 300 jobs in its first phase.

To make it easier to drive to work there the county will begin an expansion to Texas Flat Road which will pave the road all the way to connect to Hwy. 43 and the north gate of the space center.

Work should be underway by December on the project.

Also a major boon to the county is the relocation of the main employment office for Stennis space Center to the employment office on Longfellow Rd. Before residents had to drive to Pearl River County to apply for jobs at the center.

Stennis a driving force behind our growth

BY TISH H. WILLIAMS,
Director, Hancock County
Chamber of Commerce

The John C. Stennis Space Center, is Hancock County's unique federal and commercial city--home to NASA and more than 30 other federal, state, academic and private organizations. It is critical to our regional economy--employing more than 4,600 people with over 1,700 of those being scientists and engineers. Stennis indirectly accounts for over 30,000 jobs in the local area. As a community, we need to do even more to embrace this Center. Our region is in a critical position to take advantage of the resources that are available to us. Senator Trent Lott's office recently announced that $2.6 million in federal funding has been awarded for development of the proposed NASA Science and Education Center at the I-10 Visitor Center in Hancock County. This new facility, with support from the private sector, will be a world class center, showcasing Mississippi's important roles in America's space programs, defense programs, Navy programs and many other areas. It will be an education facility and an inspiration for our youth to pursue careers in science, technology, engineering, mathematics and other sciences. It will be a key to our future economic growth. The time is now to FOCUS our attention and our talents to make the center a reality and further embrace Hancock County's national asset -- the John C. Stennis Space Center.

Recently, a study conducted by Dr. Charles A. Campbell, professor of economics, Mississippi State University, released the results of the 2002 community impact study of Stennis Space Center on Mississippi and Louisiana.

During 2002, Stennis Space Center had a direct economic impact on Mississippi and Louisiana of $559 million.

What if Stennis Space Center had not been here in 2002? The study indicates that employment would have been reduced by close to 33,000 jobs. Personal income would have been reduced by $1.072 billion and retail sales would have been reduced by $429 million.

The Hancock Chamber, as the voice of the community and business, salutes our economic partner, John C. Stennis Space Center, our unique federal and commercial city. As a community, we need to do everything we can, supporting our Congressional Delegation, to embrace Stennis and to demonstrate how much we value them as an economic partner and as contributing citizens in our community.

Stennis Space Center is a good neighbor in Mississippi and Louisiana. In business, they are active members of the Chambers of Commerce and support decision-makers with remote sensing technology. Through service to communities, they pledged more than $344,000 in 2002 through the Combined Federal/United Way Campaigns. For the past 20 years, they have hosted the Mississippi Area III Special Olympics. Each year, they sponsor blood drives in the two state area, and serve as speakers during community and civic events. They assist law enforcement with technologies, and serve as a civil defense shelter. In education, the StennisSphere visitor center educates and entertains more than 34,000 students and 330 tour groups annually. And, they conduct special educational camps, and

Hancock is a bright spot in the Coast's economy

BY JOHN P. BAXTER
President, Hancock County
Chamber of Commerce

For Hancock County -- the future looks bright. Lauded as one of the fastest growing areas in the state, the region calls Hancock County a bright spot in the Coastal economy. The region has turned the corner and is poised for the next wave of growth with Hancock County in the spotlight. In 2002, unemployment levels for the Mississippi Coast region increased to 5.2 percent, but Hancock County recorded the region's lowest levels of unemployment at 4.6 -- buoyed by continued activity at NASA's Stennis Space Center. Hancock County also enjoyed new commercial investment through continued leveraging of assets such as Stennis and growing tourism amenities in Bay St. Louis. Celebrating a ten-year anniversary of dockside gaming, Casino Magic Bay St. Louis unveiled its new fourteen story hotel and conference center, adding three hundred rooms and thirty five thousand square feet of meeting space to the hotel's inventory. Mississippi Coast retailers continued to suffer with the rest of the nation, grappling with the effects of a national recession and the threat of war. The region ended 2002 with sales almost equal to the year before, yet surpassing industry estimates. In Hancock County however, there was a 15 percent increase-- rising to more than $460 million in 2002 -- making it a bright spot for the retail economy. At the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, we are proud to partner with the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission and the Hancock County Tourism Bureau on economic development initiatives. Annually, our 800 member representatives work together to promote the social, civic and economic well-being of our county. You can help in this effort too. If you are already involved, I thank you for your leadership and challenge you to reach beyond what you know you can do. If you are not yet involved, I invite you to join with others to help us achieve the goals. Call the Chamber. Get Involved. It works. For more information, call 228-467-9048.

Stennis: Fueling Hancock County's future

Space center's global economic impact tops $800M — with $559M of that applied here

THE SEA COAST ECHO

For more than four decades, the John C. Stennis Center in Hancock County has served as NASA's rocket propulsion testing ground. Today, the center provides test services not only for America's space program, but also for the Department of Defense and the private sector. Stennis Space Center also utilizes NASA's unique Earth science research results, remote sensing and other technical capabilities to enable more informed decisions to solve practical problems here on Earth.

Stennis Space Center tested engines that powered the Apollo stages that took Americans to the Moon. Since 1975, Stennis has tested the main engines that propel the Space Shuttle into orbit.

Today, the Space Shuttle's main mission is to carry astronauts and their payloads to the orbiting scientific laboratory, the International Space Station.

Stennis has modern, state-of-the-art propulsion test facilities. Three test stands provide engine systems testing, and the versatile E-Complex serves as a developmental rocket engine component test facility for engines that will power future launch vehicles.

To help understand and protect our home planet, Stennis Space Center's Earth Science Applications Directorate uses data obtained from remote sensing technology to study trends and analyze problems. These sensors are flown aboard satellites and aircraft and provide information needed for determining changes and requirements in both populated and rural regions.

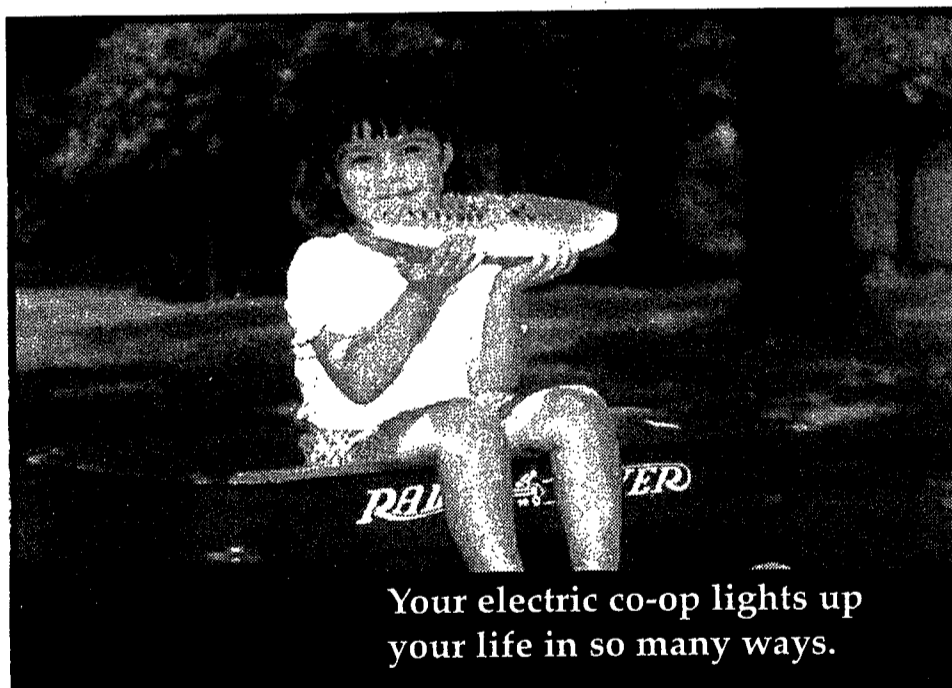

A unique federal city managed by NASA, Stennis is home to NASA, its contractor team, over 30 other federal, state academic and private organizations and nearly 60 technology-based companies. This synergy leads to the sharing of costs, services and technical capabilities that make Stennis a national model of teamwork and government cost effectiveness.

The workforce totals over 4,600, including 1,700 scientists and engineers engaged in space, oceans, environmental and national defense programs. The largest resident agency at Stennis is the U.S. Navy.

Over the years, Stennis Space Center has played a significant role in the economic impact on Hancock County, as well as to those other counties and parishes surrounding the space center. In 2002, Stennis had a direct global economic impact of $817 million. The economic impact on areas within a 50-mile radius totaled $559 million.

An annual report prepared by Dr. Charles Campbell, professor of economics, Mississippi State University, estimated that in 2002 area employment would have been reduced by 32,990 jobs if Stennis had not been in operation, and personal income would have been reduced by more than $1.072 billion. Retail sales would have been reduced by more than $429 million. The estimated tax revenue impact from the center on the local government income is $116 million.

Twenty-two percent of Stennis Space Center's 4,626 employees live and work in Hancock County. The residential distribution for fiscal year 2002 was as follows: 1,264 lived in Pearl River County, Miss.; 1,015 lived in Hancock County, Miss.; 990 lived in St. Tammany Parish, La.; 866 lived in Harrison County, Miss.; 232 lived elsewhere in Louisiana; 194 lived elsewhere in Mississippi; and 65 lived in states other than Mississippi or Louisiana.

Stennis personnel are also active in their local communities by volunteering for Special Olympics, contributing to United Way campaigns, serving as Scout leaders, Little League coaches, as well as other civic involvement.

An integral part of the Stennis community is its education programs. NASA uses its unique resources to inspire the next generation of explorers to study math and science and consider scientific careers.

The Educator Resource Center offers workshops to teachers as well as materials such as computer software, lesson plans, videotapes and printed materials for their classrooms. A computer center and the Mississippi Interactive Video Network help educators integrate state-of-the-art technology into their classrooms.

NASA's Earth Science Applications Directorate at the John C. Stennis Space Center in Hancock County, Miss., uses aircraft and satellites to take highly detailed images of the Earth's surface.

The National Workforce Development Education and Training Initiative brings remote sensing education to students to ensure U.S. competitiveness in the remote sensing industry.

One of Mississippi's leading tourist attractions is StenniSphere, the visitor center at Stennis. Open daily and free of charge, StenniSphere inspires visitors to reach beyond the stars by teaching them about NASA as well as about the other agencies located at the space center.

Visitors can see over 14,000 square feet of interactive exhibits and try their hand at piloting the Space Shuttle in a realistic cockpit simulator; walk through a mock-up of the International

nauts live and work; sit at the controls of a Space Shuttle Main Engine test in the Test Control Center exhibit; take a walk under the sea, and more. Numerous outdoor exhibits are also on display.

Added attractions include a 1960's-style diner, the RocKeTeria, a motion simulator ride ($4 for children ages 14 and under; $5 for adults) and the Space Odyssey Gift Shop, with out-of-this-world souvenirs and gifts.

Visitors begin their journey to StenniSphere at the Launch Pad located at the Hancock County Welcome Center, I-10, Exit 2. Visitors begin their journey to StenniSphere at the Launch Pad located at the Hancock County Welcome Center, I-10, Exit 2.

All visitors 18 years of age and older are required to have a photo I.D. to receive a special visitors' badges to wear during their visit. Visitors then board a shuttle bus to StenniSphere, taking a tour of Stennis Space Center along the way. Buses travel to and from the Launch Pad at 15-minute intervals all day, so visitors can stay as long as they wish.

StenniSphere is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. It is closed on major holidays. For more information, call 228-688-2370 or 1-800-237-1821 (Option 1) in Mississippi or Louisiana, or visit www.ssc.nasa.gov/public/visitors.

Library System bigger, better than ever

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Hancock County Library System over the past year continued its course as one of the finest, most technologically advanced systems in the nation. A national award winning library system, it received the Institute of Museum and Library Services' coveted National Award for Library Service in 2001 for its innovative interaction with and enhancement of the community.

The HCLS grew in nearly every category over the past year, serving more customers with more varied services and numbers of items than ever before.

The library system's four branches - Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, Kiln Public Library, Pearlinton Public Library or Waveland Library (with its nearly complete renovation/expansion project) offer a host of services to Hancock residents and visitors alike.

In 2002, a total of 260,000 items were checked out from the library system's four branches. At an average cost of $30, those would have cost Hancock County's people $780,000. During that time, library users borrowed 18,835 books on tape that would have cost them $470,875.

Also during 2002, the library system loaned a total of 44,780 videos - which would have cost users nearly $224,000 if rented at video stores.

In September, the HCLS began its "Read it on the Road" program, loaning 292 books on CD in a two-week span.

And, the library systems customers in fiscal year 2002 received a total of 26,000 hours of free computer use.

Among the services available at the Hancock County Library System include:

- More than 100,000 items including books, videos, and books on tape.

- Community information, brochures, pamphlets, handouts and notices on local activities, organizations and services;

- Fishing rods and reels for check out.

- Local, state and national newspapers, as well as more than 150 magazines and journals.

- Reproducible state and federal income tax forms.

- Local history information.

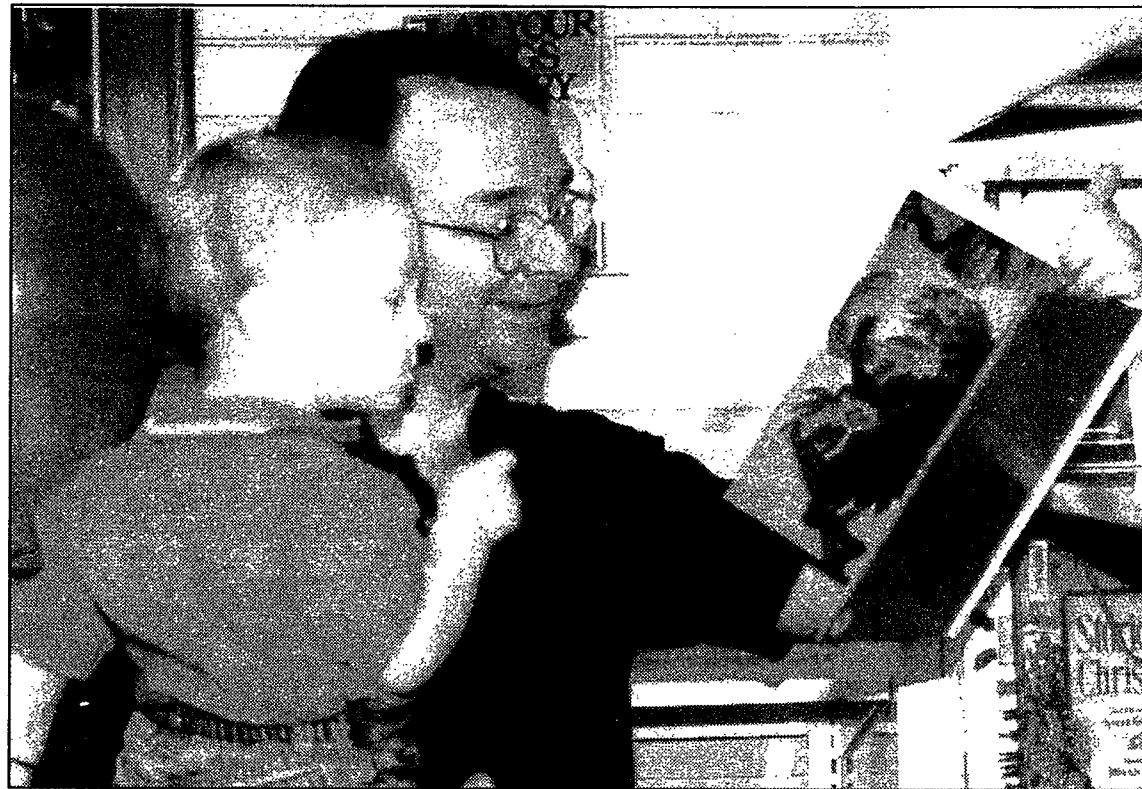

- Paperback lending library that has items that may be borrowed without a library card.

- Free meeting room space for public functions.

- Innovative children's programs year-round, from story hours for pre-schoolers to Summer Reading Programs for children through eighth grade.

- Quick, factual answers to simple reference questions by phone.

- Free Online Computer User Services (FOCUS)

More than 1,500 children attend the library system's programs each year. Here, local attorney Brehm Bell reads a book to his son at the Pearlinton Public Library.

allows access to the informational resources of MissIN (Mississippi Information Network) and the World Wide Web.

- Access to the library's automated catalog via their home, office or school modem with a Personal Identification Number (PIN) through Dial Pac.

- Art by local artists Nadine Stamm and Robert Waldrop available for viewing at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, along with the marble, steel and copper sculpture of Hamilton Guenard.

- Renaissance - - The Revival of a Community, located on the exterior of the building at the Ulman Avenue entrance, which records the history, culture and architecture of the community.

- Sponsor of the annual Holiday Tree Gala, where local businesses, schools and organizations decorate trees to display in the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library. This event has become the official kick off of the county's holiday season, and includes choirs and other entertainment.

- Outside book returns.
- Sponsor of the Great Books Discussion Group at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

- Co-sponsor of the Second Friday Book Club at the Kiln Public Library.

Growing a legacy of partnerships for recreational opportunities

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Imagine living in a community connected by trails, sidewalks and walkways. Imagine having easy access to the coastal and inland waterways, with recreational options throughout, and buffers of open space and green space defining the communities. This is what the people of Hancock County are not only imagining but also defining and building in their communities.

"We have the building blocks in place," said Lisa Cowand, "and we are looking toward the future to grow a legacy for our children and Supervisors, who, with support from the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and other agencies, are working to make this dream reality.

"It is not surprising to see the people of this community and visitors drawn to the beautiful and natural areas of this county," said Cowand. "The beach walking pathway has become very popular with residents and visitors alike," she said. "It is not unusual to see people, including entire families, walking on the pathway from early in the morning through the evening hours."

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors, working together, recognized the need for this growing community to continue to provide recreational areas and green spaces. In response to this need, they applied for and received a Mississippi Coastal Impact Assistance Grant from the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality to develop a Greenways and Open Space Plan for Hancock

Clermont Harbor growing by the truckload

THE SEA COAST ECHO

After years of planning and waiting and saving, the Clermont Harbor/Lakeshore Fire Protection District was able to combine a Mississippi Rural Fire Truck Acquisition Assistance Program Grant from the Mississippi Legislature with a grant from the United States Department of Agriculture Rural Development Administration to purchase a new fire truck for the District. Insurance Commissioner George Dale said that this was the first time in Mississippi that the Mississippi funds had been used as matching funds for the USDA Rural Development Administration Grant funds.

"We could not have done this, without a lot of people pulling for us," said Clermont Harbor Fire Chief Charles Jackson. The truck purchased by Clermont Harbor was the 301st truck purchased with the Mississippi Rural Fire Truck Acquisition Assistance Program grant funds. The State funds provided $50,000 towards the $140,000 fire truck, with funding from the USDA making up $90,000 of the cost.

"And we waited and waited," Jackson said. "Patience truly paid off for us. USDA does not have a lot of funds for projects like ours, so we knew it would be competitive and we were prepared to wait." The Clermont Harbor-Lakeshore Fire Protection District originally filed an application with the USDA Rural Development Administration in early 2001.

During the summer of 2001, the Fire Protection District received a call from USDA indicating that there had been a special allocation of funding, and that Clermont Harbor's application was under consideration.

"We received notification that we received the USDA grant in the fall of 2001, and that year we also received word that funds might be available from the Mississippi Rural Fire Truck Acquisition Assistance Program."

The program provides funding up to $50,000 for rural fire departments for the purchase of either new or used fire trucks. The program was initiated by the legislature in 1998 as a one-year only project. The program was so beneficial to communities across the state, that the program was con-

Between 1998 and the current 2002 round, 301 fire trucks were purchased in Mississippi with funds from the State program, five of these trucks are owned by Hancock County Fire Departments.

Funding for the program was threatened in 2002, due to the tight state budget. But Hancock County's legislative delegation, Representatives J.P. Compretta and Dirk Dedaux and Senator Scotty Cuevas, pushed for the program. The Mississippi Department of Insurance estimated that since the legislature initiated the program in 1998, insurance rates have been lowered for 560,000 residents in the State of Mississippi through the purchase of new fire fighting equipment.

"We now have a reliable truck to provide the best service available to property owners within the Clermont Harbor-Lakeshore Fire Protection District. Strategically, we are working to reduce insurance rates for residents within this district. We were very lucky that our patience paid off, and were lucky that our Hancock County delegation believes enough in this program to continue to support it," Jackson said.

County poised for take-off, thanks to P&H

Improvements at Port Bienville, Stennis Air helping Hancock grow

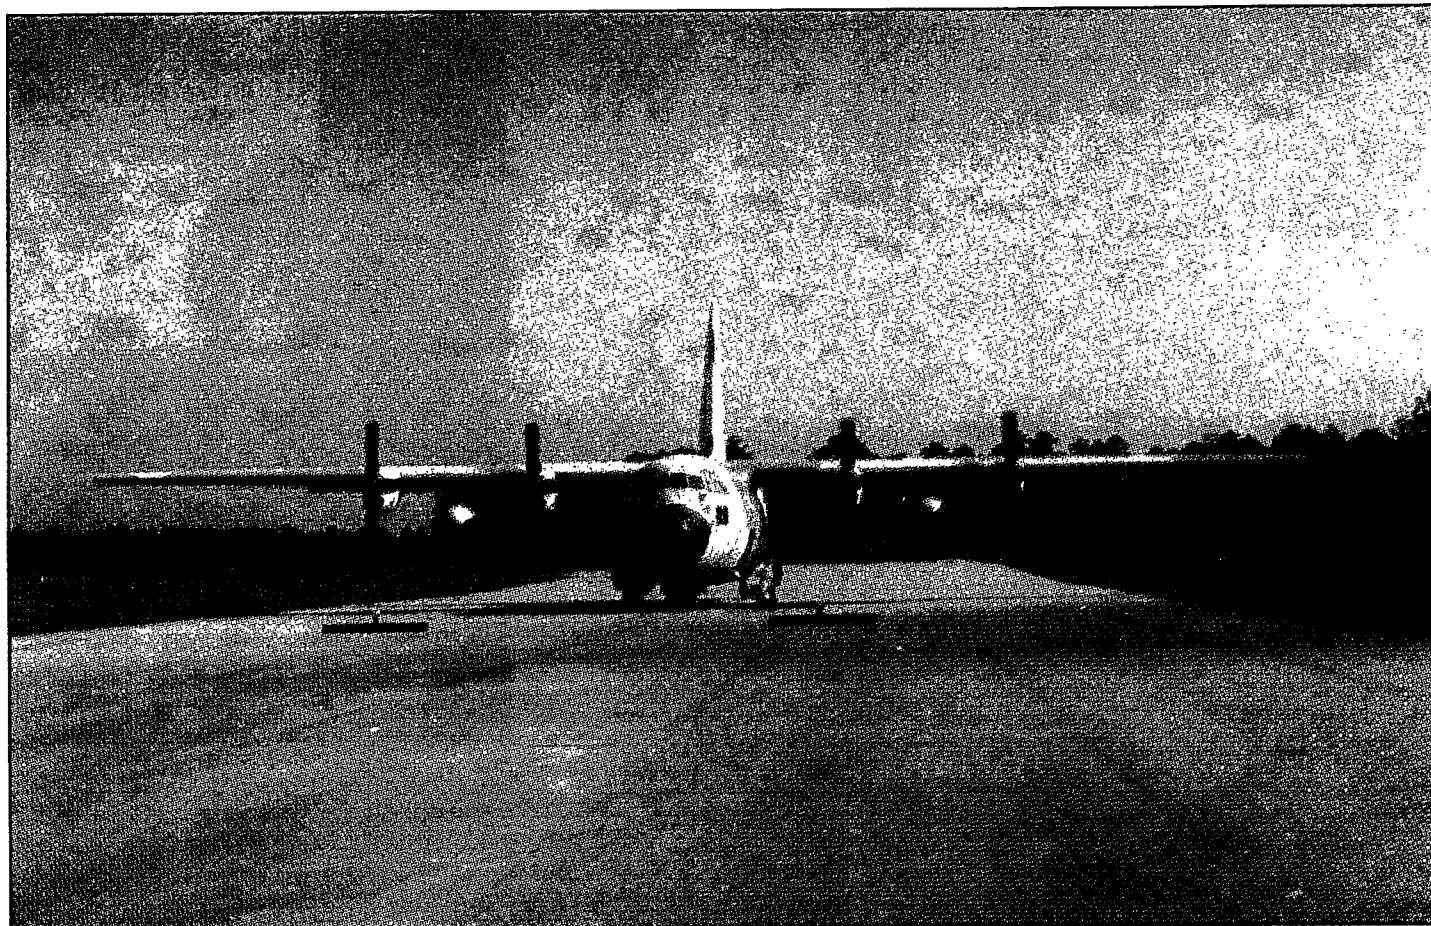

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The past year marked one of the busiest years in the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission's history—a year filled with more activities to create new jobs in the County than ever before.

The commission's staff attended eight trade shows to promote the county as a new business and industry location, including efforts to recruit aviation, aerospace, rail and truck shipping, and water-dependent industries.

In addition, the staff made four individual visits to companies interested in new locations, and placed advertisements in several of the top-ranked publications in the country for aviation and high-technology companies.

With the assistance of Mississippi Power Company, the commission completed a seven-minute video promoting the county that is being used in its recruiting efforts.

On the local level, the Commission joined forces with the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the Hancock County Tourism Development Bureau to jointly sponsor the Annual Awards Gala. Set at the Casino Magic, the event was a sell-out. Recipient of the Commission's Industry of the Year Award at the event was Mississippi Polymer Technologies (MPT). Captain David Humphries of Linea Peninsular received the Commission's Award of Excellence in recognition of the Company's long-term commitment to Port Bienville.

The Commission also nominated Mississippi Polymer Technologies for the Governor's Cup Award in the small business category, and MPT was recently chosen the winner in the southern region. MPT will now compete with other small businesses statewide for top honors that will be announced in July.

This past year has seen the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission continue enhancing county facilities in order to attract more new and expanding companies, and is promoting the County in even more markets.

At the Airport ...

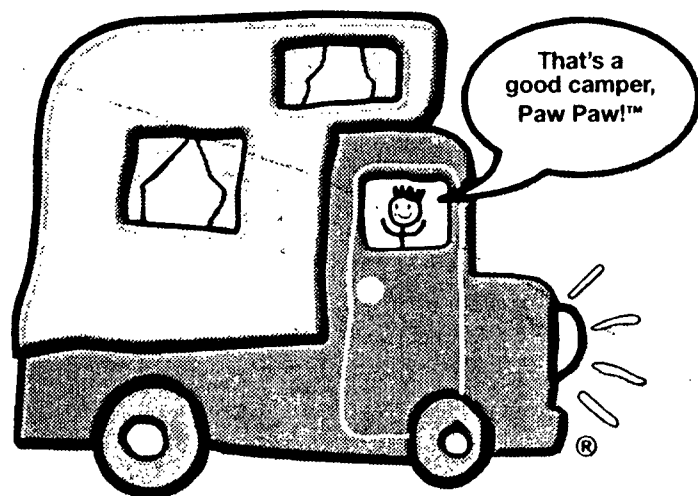

This year's developments included the announcement of the location of Memphis International, Optech and Mardi Gras Air at the Stennis Airport. Memphis International will retrofit C-130 aircraft for the military, Optech is a high-tech remote sensing company, and Mardi Gras Air is a new Fixed Base Operator that will supply fuel and flight services. When fully operational, these three new businesses will create upwards of 125 new jobs.

The airport hosted a wide variety of aircraft operations this year, including sorties involving the Navy Seals, the Air Force's Hurricane Hunters and the largest aircraft in the world, the Antonov 124.

Capital investment of over $5.8 million have resulted in the following airport improvements during the past year:

- Activation of the new Instrument Landing System (ILS) On March 20, 2003.
- Receipt of Congressional funding for approach lighting system
- Beginning of construction of the

At Port Bienville...

Southwest Engineers has purchased a six-acre site and intends to build a 40,000 sq. ft. building to house approximately 40 employees who will be engaged in chemical blending.

The Commission prepared a bid package to re-surface and up-grade the South Road serving the Park, and let bids for the construction of an Intermodal Cargo Transfer Facility near the Park's main wharves.

Shipping volume through the Port Bienville Industrial Park continued to grow, averaging over 20% for the year.

Among the improvements at the park were:

- Completion of a new fuel farm.

• Clearing for Intermodal Cargo Transfer Facility.

• Installation of new lights at the Main Entrance guardhouse.

• Completion of maintenance dredging within the Park, and in Little Lake.

• Repairing main wharf docks.

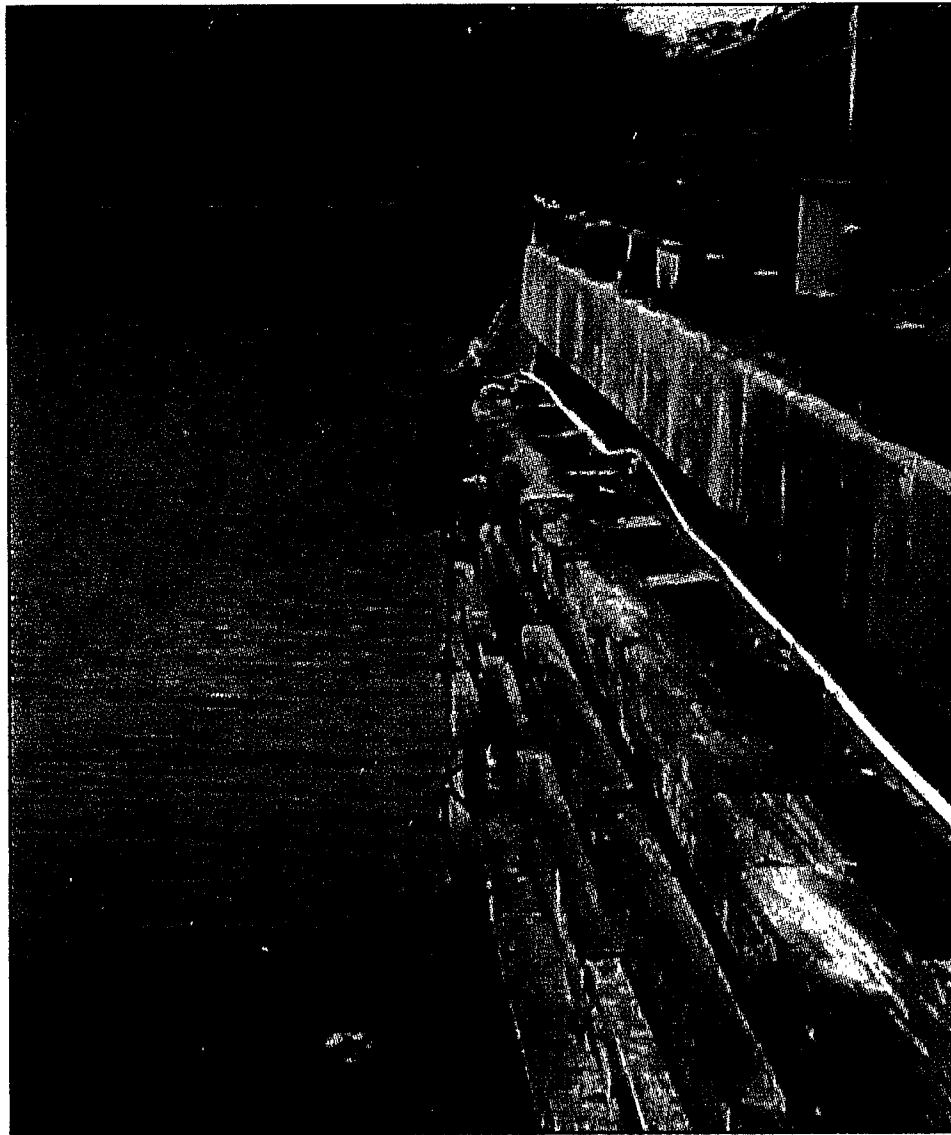

• Completion of repairs to the bulkhead, and installation of limestone at the Turning Basin.

• Completion of repairs and installation of four new doors wharf-side warehouse.

At the Port Bienville Railroad...

The Port Bienville Railroad was once again named a "Jake" Award winner by the American Short Line Railroad Association for completing a year's operation without a railroad-related injury. This was the third year in a row that the Park's railroad won the award.

The Commission let a contract for final railroad up-grades within the Park necessary to handle 286,000-lb cars, and for more in-park rail storage track. Total cost of the project is approximately $1.5M, and the commission is three years ahead of its scheduled enhancements to the railroad system within Port Bienville.

Waveland: Call it a 'rebuilding year'

City hall, civic center & library renovations only a few of the many improvements

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The City of Waveland is many things to many people. Traditionally it was a place where harried New Orleanians came to escape the pressures of the city and many of those folks chose to make a permanent home here. But rather than change Waveland, Waveland changed these new residents and so the city has managed to remain a quiet, friendly picturesque town by the sea while fostering growth at its own pace.

On the main street of the downtown area, Coleman Ave., a revival program led by the Coleman Avenue Coalition has spurred new growth and activities. Though the Hwy. 90 corridor remains the center for traditional shopping needs in town, the heart and soul of the city can only be experienced by a trip to old Coleman Ave., where you can shop, dine, mail a letter, go to the library, and visit City Hall, all while you enjoy a perfect view of the Mississippi Sound.

But don't be in a hurry. If you are a local, you will be stopped for hellos and your opinion on the latest news or events, and if you are a visitor, people will want to know where you are from, why you are here and — most of all — your opinion of the area. Then they will want to tell you about their favorite places. Waveland didn't just make up the name, "Hospitality City."

To go along with the fun loving hospitable spirit of the town are several annual events. At Mardi Gras time, the all-women's crew of Nereids holds its annual parade on Hwy. 90, with participation from several other local crews.

Before the party spirit of Mardi Gras can get away, the Waveland Civic Association hosts their annual St. Patrick's Day Parade on Coleman Ave., an event you have to see to believe. Besides going home with the usual trinkets, many parade goers leave with a complete traditional dinner of carrots, potatoes, onions,

The former Waveland Elementary School on Coleman Ave. — now the Waveland Civic Center — is in the midst of major renovations.

The Easter season brings the annual Paws on Parade, sponsored by the Friends of the Animal Shelter and the Waveland Shelter. Furry friends dress up in their finest and parade to the soccer field for a day of fun activities. Pet owners are also welcome at the event.

On Labor Day weekend the Civic Association also sponsors a fireworks display on the beach at the foot of Coleman Ave. It's a perfect way to wind up the day after enjoying the activities at Wave Fest, an all day activity held on the Avenue. The Fest features arts and crafts, competitions, music and more.

An annual children's fishing rodeo is also sponsored by the Son's American Legion Hall Post 177. Finishing out the year is the Annual Christmas Festival and Parade on the Avenue. Santa and Mrs. Clause arrive by float at their throne at City Hall, where local school children and gospel choirs serenade festival goers.

In between all the fun, of course, business does go on. Recent elections brought the city three new aldermen, Keith Mitchell, Ward 1; Brian Schmitt, Ward 3; and Santo Saucier, Ward 4. Re-elected were Mayor Tommy Longo and Ward 2 Alderman Rickey Geoffrey.

Robyn Carvin was hired as the mayor's new secretary. Carvin is always ready to help a caller find an answer to his or her questions.

René Lick became the new animal shelter director. The spay-neuter project at the shelter is about to become a reality now that PetsMart has given the Friends of the Animal Shelter a $15,000 grant to help fund the project. Services should become available within three to four months. Other improvements are also planned over the next five years.

A restructuring of the Public Works Department has added Tracy Hickman as the new director. Hickman promises to emphasize quick response time to calls from customers. The city has also embarked on a new $500,000 Storm Water Management Plan and is already a highly-touted and nationally recognized award winner for its innovative floodplain management program. A $1.5 million plan to upgrade aging water and sewer infrastructure is also under way.

On Coleman Ave., the refurbishment of many existing structures is progressing at a rapid pace. A $400,000 upgrade and remodel of the 116 year old City Hall will be completed this summer. Upgrades make the building completely handicapped accessible.

Down the street, an expansion project at the Waveland Branch of the Hancock County Library is nearing completion, bringing the building to a total of 5,000 sq. Next door, the Old Waveland School is in the midst of a multi-phase renovation that will allow the building to be used for a new civic center.

The Hospitality Center near Waveland Ave. at Hwy. 90 is also slated for a facelift, remodel, and new landscape project beginning in July. The city continues to seek grant dollars for the completion of the beach front walkway and bicycle path and city sidewalks.

In July, a $900,000 upgrade and repair to the Garfield Ladner Pier at the foot of Terrace Ave. will be nearing completion. Upgrades have added picnic pagodas, length to the pier, new lighting, a comfort station and rest room facilities, as well as road upgrades.

This year also saw the completion of the Veterans Memorial on the beach at the foot of Coleman. The project received the prestigious Blue Star Award for beautification.

Other plans for capital improvement plans for the fire station, police station, and court facilities are being studied so the city can continue to meet the needs of its growing community. The city continues to pursue economic growth by encouraging new businesses both, small and large, to locate in the city, but under the policy of smart growth to ensure the city remains the pleasant place to live that it is now.

Bay St. Louis aiming to triple in size

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Staff Writer

A town of 8,200 residents, Bay St. Louis finds itself poised for explosive growth and expansion that few would have imagined only a few years ago.

The ink is still wet on a proposal that would triple the city's physical size, and increase its population by 50 percent - adding a huge swath of territory between the Jourdan River and Highway 603, to Interstate 10 and beyond.

The proposed annexation comes at a time when city fathers are eager to turn out for every ribbon cutting within the municipality, jump for joy when sales tax collections and gaming revenues rise, and shake their heads with the loss of a major industry, Alcan Co.

Easily, the annexation quest could take two years in Chancery Court and on appeals if formal opposition develops. That could be a costly exercise, but officials see the potential expansion as the only logical step to provide for the city's commercial and economic future.

Some 16 months ago, Mayor Eddie Favre launched the expansion effort by telling City Council members that annexing only residential properties is not an option financially. That's because residential property taxes don't generate enough revenue to cover the costs of city services.

"The only way it will be feasible is if there's a substantial retail base," said Favre as the stage was set to hire a consulting firm's services. Agreeing to pay up to $25,000 for a major study of the issue, council members would meet many times over the ensuing year with Mike Slaughter, a principal in the firm of Bridge & Slaughter, planning consultants based in Oxford.

Such a detailed study is key to a city making a case in court for annexation, where the municipality must prove that the proposed annexation is reasonable.

Factors in whether it's reasonable include the city's need for expansion, a need for planning and zoning, past performance of the city, natural barriers, impact on minority voting strength, and impacts on the residents and property owners.

Does the city have the resources to bite off such an ambitious chunk of additional territory? That's a key section of the report.

The issue of annexation has popped up several times in recent years in Bay St. Louis. Property owners in the Garden Isles residential area off Blue Meadow Road sought to come into the city limits several years ago - only to be snubbed because city officials feared it would represent a big financial drain.

Slaughter had gathered some demographic statistics, however, that indicate the city might well take a look at growth. Census figures from 1970 to 2000, for instance, show a county population explosion: from 17,387 to 42,967. Bay St. Louis, meanwhile, inched up from 6,752 residents in 1970 to 8,209 in 2000.

Housing units in the county almost tripled during the same time. In Bay St. Louis, the housing count crept up from 2,530 to 3,817. Slaughter's preliminary data showed.

The city had only three more retail businesses in 2001 than it did in 1999, the consultant's data showed.

"Demographics are definitely tied to the need for annexation," Slaughter told council member as he recommended a study. While it's good that Bay St. Louis didn't lose population over the past 10 years, he said, "you can see that Bay St. Louis has not captured its proportionate share of the county's population growth."

Incorporated in 1882, Bay St. Louis rarely has added to its boundaries. Its most recent annexation was in 1992, when the city took in the Cedar Point territory that now includes Casino Magic.

The 2000 Census showed Bay St. Louis gaining only a relative handful of new residents. The annexation anticipates adding 4,000 more, including residents of Garden Isles, much of Shoreline Park, and Jourdan River Estates.

And city leaders anxiously eye the commercial corridor developing along Highway 603, that would give the municipality enormous room to boost its tax base.

There have been some major additions and subtractions from that tax base in recent months. Leaders were stunned to learn that Alcan Co. is closing its doors, tossing 116 employees into unemployment and hitting the city's coffers substantially.

Officials anticipate a total loss of $80,000 in property taxes and gas system revenues. Immediately, an effort was launched to find a new buyer for the large Railroad Avenue industrial complex and to find jobs for the newly unemployed.

There was other, better, economic news for the city. Housing and commercial construction and renovations continued at a steady clip; sales tax revenues showed an upturn and gaming revenues from Casino Magic were surprisingly high.

The casino, with a new hotel and conference center, is churning more cash into the city's coffers than leaders expected.

Other recent growth included a new automobile repair business on Highway 90, a $2.3 million expansion of St. Augustine Retreat Center, and continued construction of homes in the upscale Chapel Hill development. Winn Dixie is amid a $1.1 million upgrade. Dunbar Village is adding a 36-bed wing; new restaurants are popping up. And a new medical complex is being developed on Highway 90.

St. Stanislaus College launched a $10-million expansion and renovation program. Homebuyers have scooped up a number of deteriorated properties, and restored them.

There are some major items on the city's agenda, meanwhile. Officials are expected to pass a $2 million bond issue this year to provide for a widespread city street-resurfacing program that will touch some or all of 40 streets.

A renewed study of historic preservation possibilities in the city also is in progress, and is expected to lead to adoption of some new rules safeguarding the vast stock of historic homes in town.

To help shore its financial standing, officials have a crackdown in progress on past due utility bills. The administration also wants to refinance some of the $11 million in general obligation and revenue bonds it issued in 1996 and 1997, saving about $150,000 in debt service costs.

County.

"The Greenways Plan was a recommended strategy of the Hancock County Strategic Plan for Smart Growth, developed by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce," said Ron Magee, Co-Chairman of the Chamber's Community Development Committee. "The intent of the plan is to develop a series of green spaces and a trail system throughout the county to preserve nature resources and neighborhoods," he said. Magee said the plan will also provide additional recreational and eco-tourism opportunities in the County.

Sue Chamberlain, Project Manager for the Greenways Program, said that studies from across the country indicate that Greenways projects have a positive benefit to the community as a whole, and individual neighborhoods adjacent to the trail system or open space preservation areas. In the early 1980s, the City of Boulder, Colorado completed a greenways system along their floodplain. Ten years after the completion of the greenways system, homes located near the greenways system were reported to have values 32 percent higher than homes located further from the system. A survey from the Real Estate Industry completed in 2000, indicated that walking paths and bike paths ranked third among 39 features identified by homebuyers as crucial factors in home-buying decisions.

"We see the benefits of the beach trail and the Mississippi Sound every day," said Colleen Read, owner of Da Beach House in Bay St. Louis. "It brings visitors to our community, and reinforces the sense of community in Bay St. Louis," she said. Read said Greenways are corridors of land recognized for their ability to connect people and places together and are located within linear corridors that are either natural, such as rivers and streams, or man-made such as railroad beds, utility corridors, and sidewalks.

her business caters to the day traveler or tourist and local residents, offering bike and kayak rentals, different types of beverages, and other merchandise. Local people visit our business daily to start their walks and runs on the beach, or to just get a cup of coffee and watch the water."

Thirteen small businesses located along the Wisconsin Fox River Trail reported increased sales during the first four months that the trail was open in the amount of $58,618. The state of Maryland has a statewide Greenways Program. The State estimates that the Greenways support 264 jobs across the state and produces $3.38 million per year in revenues.

"Partnership is the only way that we can grow a legacy for the future, but also realizes projects on the ground, right now," said Magee. "We can't ask one local, state or federal agency to be responsible for all the improvements, all the maintenance that goes with the development of a trails and open space legacy." For this reason, the Chamber of Commerce continues to be a partner with the Board of Supervisors in the development of the plan.

"In Hancock County, we believe success is generated through partnerships," said Magee. "Through partnerships, a variety of resources come together at the local, state and federal levels to develop and implement plans like a trails and open space legacy for Hancock County," he said.

"The Hancock Chamber views the Greenways Plan as an economic development tool," said Chamber President John P. Baxter of Hancock Bank. "We see the potential for small business development and enhancement through eco-tourism," he said. "We also see the potential to protect businesses and neighborhoods through the development of green-spaces and buffers," he said.

Baxter also said that the end result of a greenways plan is the creation of a great quality of life, where people can enjoy the community and the nature areas around them. "This," he said, "is attractive to businesses considering locating to Hancock County."

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors received notification in May of a technical assistance award from the National Park Service-Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance program. The technical assistance award will help the county identify funding opportunities, including grants, to help implement the plan. The county has also enlisted the support of the Land Trust for the Mississippi Coastal Plain and The Nature Conservancy. Both organizations have missions that seek to conserve and preserve lands with distinct ecological or community values. Other planning collaborators on this project include local Architect Allison Anderson, who is providing design services; and Compton Engineering, whose engineers provide mapping and services for the project.

"We are about one-third complete with the project," said Project Manager Sue Chamberlain. "We meet monthly to review the progress of the project, and have scheduled quarterly evening receptions to get feedback from the public," she said.

The next reception is scheduled for Monday, July 28th at the Center for Creation located on Washington Avenue in Bay St. Louis. The Nature Conservancy and the Land Trust for the Coastal Mississippi Plan will explain landowner options for private conservation. If you would like to participate in the monthly meetings, please call the Hancock Chamber at (228) 467-9048 for the next meeting date, location and time.

provide workshops and materials for educators. They also serve as a partner in the Gulf Coast Education Initiative Consortium. And, they support participation in the FIRST Robotics competition and transfer surplus federal equipment to schools.

In short -- they are valued, contributing citizens in our community.

Through a two state regional advocacy organization known as Partners for Stennis, the Hancock Chamber is providing leadership to devise a strategic plan to explore ways to further embrace and support Stennis Space Center.

Through Partners for Stennis, we are reaching out to other states with Space Centers to help create the plan. As a region, we must address how we can become a greater resource to the citizens of our community by promoting the economic, technical and academic growth of John C. Stennis Space Center. As a region, we must explore how we can improve economic outcomes for our region through greater involvement with and support of Stennis Space Center.

In these other areas, the right people saw a need, had a vision for the potential, and the desire to make it happen. There is no reason why the same programs cannot be replicated here. It is our duty to do everything we can to inspire the next generation of explorers right here at home.

HMC renovation will improve access

THE SEA COAST ECHO

A major renovation at Hancock Medical Center will improve access to outpatient services, according to Administrator Hal W. Leftwich, DBA, FACHE.

The 104-bed acute care facility applied for a Certificate of Need from the state for a multi-million dollar plan to renovate the 1987 building, including the creation of a new outpatient lobby at the Drinkwater Boulevard entrance.

Ancillary testing services such as lab, EKG and other diagnostics will be easily accessible.

"We realize our patients lead busy lives," he said. "Our plan is to have the patient park, register, walk a few steps and have services come to him."

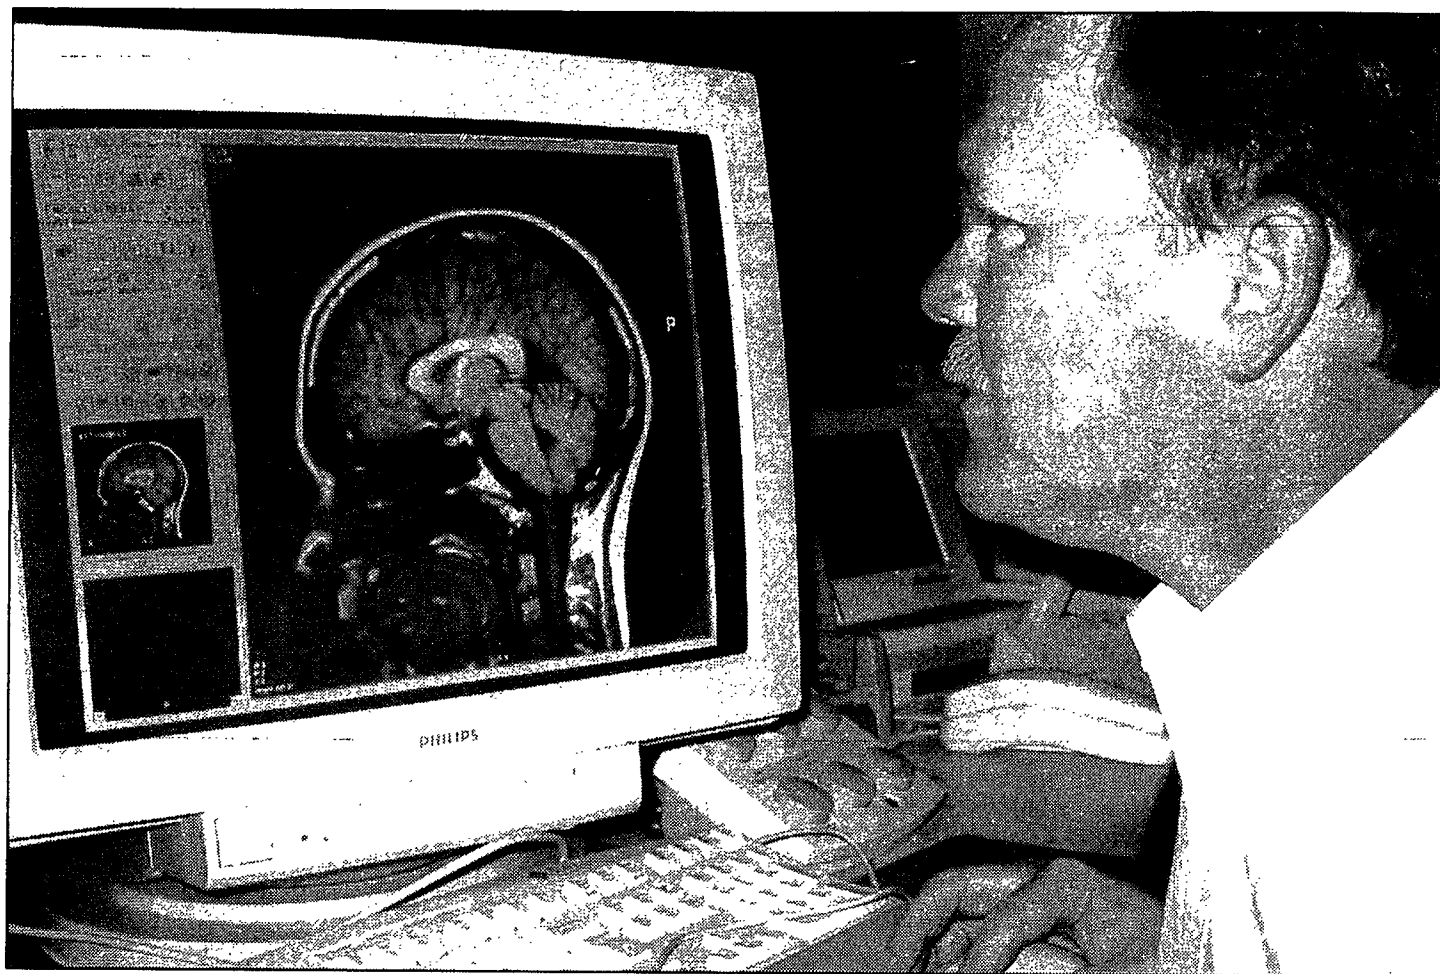

The current 149,000-sq.-ft. facility saw a major expansion in 1998, when new labor/delivery/postpartum and nursery units, intensive care unit, pediatric and post-surgical units were added.

A major renovation, focusing on improved access to outpatient services, is underway and will continue over the next few years.

"We realize our patients lead busy lives," said Administrator Hal W. Leftwich, DBA, FACHE. "Our plan is to have the patient park, register, walk a few steps and have services come to him."

A new outpatient registration lobby will be created at the Drinkwater Boulevard entrance, now home to the hospital volunteers, gift shop and information desk. Lab, cardiopulmonary and some imaging services will be relocated to an adjacent corridor.

The pharmacy was relocated to the third floor of the inpatient tower in 2002, making that department more accessible to patient rooms.

Hancock Medical Center boasts one of the most sophisticated CT scanners in the area, and produces digital images that are nearly three-dimensional in a matter of seconds. The clarity of images allows physicians to use less invasive testing for diagnosis.

NEW EQUIPMENT

HMC boasts one of the most sophisticated CT scanners in the area, he said, and produces digital images that are nearly three-dimensional in a matter of seconds. The clarity of images allows physicians to use less invasive testing for diagnosis.

A magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) unit installed two years ago has some of the most advanced technology features on the market, also resulting in superior image production. A recently installed mammography unit will soon offer stereotactic breast biopsy capability, said Leftwich.

Hancock Medical Center is fully accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. Some 100 physicians comprise the active and consulting medical staffs, and represent a broad spectrum of medical specialties. The hospital's emergency room is staffed 24 hours by a physician and support staff of certified trauma professionals.

In an effort to improve waiting times, a second physician is on duty during peak times in an ambulatory emergency area. Last year, combined visits totaled more than 24,000. The hospital also participates in a coast-wide trauma network.

HMC is a health resource for all ages

THE SEA COAST ECHO

We want to take care of you when you're sick," Hancock Medical Center Administrator Hal W. Leftwich, DBA, FACHE recently told a group of local residents, "But, we are also going to try to keep you healthy."

Leftwich said the hospital's strategic plan centers around its role as the community's health resource. Numerous outreach efforts touch thousands of lives each year through educational seminars and free medical screenings.

"We also allocate significant manpower and funding to make health-care conveniently accessible to people in all areas of the county," said HMC Board of Trustees President William A. Tate III. "Our clinics in Pearlinton and Kiln are two examples of the hospital's desire to encourage employers and residents to choose local physicians and health professionals."

OUTREACH MEDICAL SERVICES

Hancock Family Care Center is located on Highway 603, next to the post office in Kiln. A nurse practitioner is on hand Monday through Friday for general medical care.

At Port Bienville, Hancock Medical Services/Robert H. Baxter Building is located near the entrance to the industrial park. Family and occupational medical care are available to employees at the site and residents of the surrounding communities of Pearlinton, Clermont Harbor and Lakeshore.

A full spectrum of rehabilitation services is offered at Hancock Rehab Services in Diamondhead. Located at Shepherd's Square, registered therapists provide physical, speech, occupational and aquatic therapy. Hancock Outpatient Rehab Services in Bay St. Louis is located across from the hospital and is open Monday through Friday.

In a cooperative effort with the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, Hancock Medical Center provides a registered nurse at the jail to help the county contain medical costs. Through HMC's occupational network, local businesses partner with the hospital for various services such as drug screening and employee wellness programs.

SCHOOL CLINICS GROW

access to medical care through HMC's clinics in the Bay-Waveland and Hancock County School Districts.

Currently, there are eight clinics; Next year, there will be an additional three. Each clinic is staffed by a registered nurse supplied by the hospital. Approximately 3,000-5,000 visits per month result in only a small percentage of students sent home due to illness, according to Ella Mae Penton, RN, program coordinator.

Also, having a registered nurse on staff has reduced the number of ambulance calls to the school, said Penton. Prior to the on-site clinics, the schools averaged three ambulance calls per week. Now there is an average of three calls per year, each one directed by one of the nurses.

Five years ago, Hancock County led the state in the number of teen pregnancies; it has since dropped to 30th. The nurses conduct programs advocating abstinence and teaching the students the hazards of having

Hancock offers quality public, private schools

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Hancock County has two public school districts. The city school district serves students who are residents of the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland. The Hancock County School District serves students who reside outside these city boundaries but within the county lines.

A five-member school board oversees the operations of each of the public school districts. The city school board consists of three members appointed by the mayor of Bay St. Louis and two elected members from the City of Waveland. The superintendent is appointed by the School Board. The County School Board consists of five elected members. The superintendent is also elected.

Bay St. Louis-Waveland Public Schools is home to approximately 2,400 students in grades kindergarten through 12. Every classroom has internet capabilities, broadening the horizon for learning and bringing the world to the fingertips of students and teachers alike. Uniforms are required dress in this school district. There are five campuses within the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District.

The Hancock County School District saw a decrease in enrollment for the 2002-2003 school year.

The student population was 4,307 for the first month of the school term, which was 15 less than the previous year. A school official said this was the first time in years the student population dropped. The 2001-2002 school year saw an increase of 137 more students than the year before.

The budget for 2002-2003 was $35,452,559 with next year's budget set at $35,944,677.

In August, the Mississippi Teacher Center selected Cheryl Ramseyer, East Hancock Elementary principal, as the alternate 2002 Administrator of the Year. Ramseyer, who has been principal since the school opened in October 1999, had been named the Administrator of the Year for the 56 Congressional District in June 2002.

Bay St. Louis Waveland School District Board of Trustees members recently took time to review the district's five-year improvement plan and critique its progress.

Superintendent Dr. Kim Stasny said she sees the most significant changes in her tenure of office as the addition of two schools, the middle school and an alternative school; the return of school maintenance and janitorial services to in-house services and the development of a five year plan as a decision making tool. She also cited a reduction in administrative costs, lowered mileage and a period of no lay-offs.

The Bay-Waveland board is still considering its proposed budget for the upcoming 2003-2004 fiscal year. The proposed budget includes a total projected revenue of $12,183,004. Of that amount, $5,216,260 - or about 43 percent - is proposed to be financed through total ad valorem taxes.

Jackie Wintruba was recently named District Teacher of the Year for the Bay-Waveland schools. Wintruba is a National Board certified teacher and holds degrees from the University of Southern Mississippi and the University of Pittsburgh. Wintruba is also a member of the Live Oak Writing Project and serves as co-chair of the North Bay Elementary Onward to Excellence school improvement leadership team. Wintruba will represent the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District in the Mississippi Teacher of the Year Program. If selected as Mississippi's Teacher of the Year she will be the state's nominee for the National Teacher of the Year.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

The Coast Region has a large catholic population, providing ready access to Catholic Christian Educational opportunities in Hancock County from preschool through grade 12. All parochial schools are affiliated with the Catholic Diocese of Biloxi.

Saint Stanislaus College (SSC) is one of the largest Catholic Boarding and Day Schools for Boys in the United States. Established in 1854, it is a highly rated college preparatory school serving young men in grades 6-12, with a student body of approximately 560 boys. Located at 304 South Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis, it is staff by the Brothers of the Sacred Heart and lay professionals. It provides services to both local residents in a day scholar program and a residency program to those looking for quality board schools. Boarding students are from many states and international areas. Also offered by SSC is a residential summer camp during the months of June and July.

Our Lady Academy (OLA) is a six year Catholic Christian all girls high school staffed by religious Sisters of Mercy and dedicated lay teachers.

Established in 1970, OLA provides a comprehensive education through a college preparatory curriculum. Strong collaboration between OLA and SSC maximizes the academic opportunities to the student body. OLA has also been recognized for very structured athletic programs resulting in several state Championships.

OLA is located in Bay St. Louis behind Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church at 222 South Beach Boulevard.

Bay Catholic Elementary and St. Clare Elementary serve grades kindergarten through six grades, and provides a feeder program to the Catholic Christian high school programs. Bay Catholic has a preschool program and a before and after school child care service. St. Clare has an after school service. Bay Catholic is located in Bay St. Louis within the Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church Parish.

St. Clare is located in Waveland within the St. Clare Catholic Church Parish, located at 234 South Beach Boulevard.

unprotected sex.

"Our pregnancy rate dropped dramatically," said Bay-Waveland Schools Superintendent Dr. Kim Stasny. "Having a registered nurse that female students can speak with confidentially has played a big role in the prevention of teen pregnancy."

Penton said another advantage of having registered nurses on campus has been a reduction in tobacco usage. In the past when a student was caught smoking or with smoking paraphernalia, he/she was automatically disciplined and ultimately suspended from school. Now parents have the option of enrolling their children in the "Not on Tobacco" program after school. NOT teaches the children the hazards of tobacco use.

The nurses conduct staff development for teachers on health-related topics such as seizures, eating disorders and asthma.

They conduct school safety and health fairs. In addition, the nurses started "Open Airways for Schools," a program for elementary school children with asthma, in the local districts.

• Sports Medicine Program: As a complement to the school clinics, the hospital provides athletic trainers to the public schools, sports programs.

• Immunization Program: Infants through age 19 may receive free immunizations the second Saturday of each month at the hospital. Vaccines include: DTAP, MMR, polio, hepatitis B, HIB, prevnar and chicken pox.

• Mammography Assistance: Through the fund-raising efforts of concerned citizens, the Hancock Medical Center Foundation (a 501c3 organization) provides screening and diagnostic mammography services to women who do not qualify for insurance or government programs. Some 300 services were provided last year.

• Community Health Fair: Each May health screenings are offered at HMC's annual community health fair. Booths are provided by many other organizations in an event fit for the whole family.

• Speakers Bureau: Informative tips on health topics are featured each month in a "lunch & learn" format in Bay St. Louis at Casino Magic's Bay Tower Hotel and Diamondhead Country Club. Speakers include physicians and health professionals. Call 467-8727 for information.

Magic-Fountain partnership good for Casino, Bay

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Bay St. Louis has always been an escape for New Orleanians. Its wonderful beaches, slower-pace of life and friendly residents are no doubt the attraction to the area. The Bay has been visited by many famous people with some celebrities even purchasing homes. One of the most notable residents is the legendary jazz musician, Pete Fountain.

Earlier this year, Fountain announced a partnership with Casino Magic Bay St. Louis. This is a significant move for Fountain, since he was in the night club business for 43 years in New Orleans.

Fountain, who is synonymous with his incomparable jazzy clarinet playing, has owned a second weekend home on the Bay in Bay St. Louis for years. His agreement with Casino Magic Bay St. Louis is to play every Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p.m. on an ongoing basis. With this, he and his family can spend more time relaxing in the Bay.

"We are very excited and pleased that Pete has chosen to partner with us. We think we are a perfect match. As the closest Mississippi casino to New Orleans, we already have a large New Orleanian customer base, so we know that the majority of our customers will be familiar with Pete Fountain and love him," said Casino Magic President & COO, John Jagunich.

"This arrangement is perfect. I can live just minutes from where I work part-time and still get to do what I do best...perform," said Fountain of his new partnership.

Casino Magic has embraced Pete Fountain whole-heartedly, kicking off a $150,000 summer promotion called "Fountains of Cash." Pete Fountain is in the ads, on the billboards and in the radio spots. The promotion's slot tournaments are even played on custom-made Pete Fountain tournament slot machines.

Starting in July, an additional promotion called "Fountain's 21, a Summer of Blackjack" will also commence, again with Fountain's endorsement.

What does Pete think about all of that?

"I love it! I'm having the time of Jazz great Pete Fountain now performs two nights a week at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis. "This arrangement is perfect. I can live just minutes from where I work part-time and still get to do what I do best...perform," said Fountain of his new partnership.

my life," said Fountain.

While Casino Magic management may know good jazz when they hear it, this relationship is no accident. It's a marketing strategy.

"We know that our partnership with Pete Fountain, his regular performances here and his endorsement of Casino Magic Bay St. Louis, will help create new relationships with casino customers in our primary markets while retaining and growing our existing customers here," said Jagunich. Casino Magic and Pete Fountain's partnership is great for tourism, too.

"Everybody knows Pete Fountain. It makes my job even easier when I'm selling Hancock County to people who are not familiar to us. I mention that in addition to art, history and beaches, that we also have Pete Fountain playing weekly and living in the Bay. You can see their eyes light up with interest," said Hancock County Tourism Development Bureau Executive Director, Beth Carriere.

Fountain, who is 72 years old, has always been considered an ambassador of New Orleans jazz as he performed his music on guest appearances on network television and specials. He has been seen on the Ed Sullivan Show, Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Andy Williams specials. He has performed 59 times on Johnny Carson's "The Tonight Show," and more recently, his credits include A Close Up of Pete Fountain, Super Bowl Saturday Night and the National Memorial Day Concert. Fountain has performed at four U.S. State Dinners by command performance for four Presidents of the United States. He has also performed for Pope John Paul II at the New Orleans Papal Mass with an attendance of over 400,000 people.

Fountain has performed with music legends ranging from Louis Armstrong and Harry James to Harry Connick, Jr. Yet to this day, his greatest thrill is taking the stage and performing the music he loves, watching as it works its irresistible magic on the audience. This year, he was also honored at Musical Legends Park on Bourbon Street with a life-sized bronze of the man, himself.

Clarke Peters

Checking in with Clarke Peters

By John Crook

As Baltimore police Detective Lester Freamon in HBO's "The Wire," Clarke Peters spends much of his time in a cramped room monitoring surveillance of local bad guys.

Off-camera, however, Peters is the kind of guy who knocks aside boundaries without a second thought. An actor of quiet authority and impressive range, he also is well-known as an electrifying musical theater lead who "razzle-dazzled" audiences as lawyer Billy Flynn in "Chicago," among many other song and dance roles.

"When I started getting further into the business, I quickly saw that people were getting pigeonholed, and I never wanted to be that," Peters says. "I went from (the musical revue) 'Bubbling Brown Sugar' to David Hare's Vietnam drama 'Dispatches.' And people were going, 'Clarke, we thought you were just a musical theater actor.' And it was working with that cast that made me realize, 'Man, there is no way I am going to let them pigeonhole me!'"

Peters, who became turned on to the performing arts in high school, went to Paris in 1971 to join his brother in the cast of a production of "Hair." Two years in the French capital were just the start of a European career mainly based in London, where he spent the next three decades performing, directing and even writing-creating the international musical smash "Five Guys Named Moe."

"It's hard for me to say where home is right now," he admits. "Certainly England is full of wonderful memories. I have friends, family, children there. My 'stuff' is there. But, I really like Baltimore (where 'The Wire' is filmed), too. It feels very European, somehow. And now I have 'stuff' here, too!"

Birthplace: New York, 1952

On his 'Wire' character: "He's had a lot of time to think about things, and now that he is back in there and getting his feet wet again, he just wants to focus on the job and getting it done."

Featured Average citizen stands up for son's Constitutional rights

By Jacqueline Cutler

As the United States prepares for the Fourth of July, PBS' "P.O.V." series eloquently reminds us of the true meaning of freedom with "Larry V. Lockney," premiering Tuesday, July 1.

This episode is about a third-generation Texas farmer, Larry Tannahill, who dared to stand against the majority. Tannahill and his wife, Traci, were raising their sons in Lockney, a West Texas town of 2,200 citizens. They knew everyone in town, where Tannahill graduated in 1982 from the high school. His father once had been a member of the board of education.

That board adopted a policy, reportedly the country's most stringent at the time, mandating students in junior high and high schools submit to drug testing. Tannahill's older son, Brady, brought home a copy, which required parental signature.

Tannahill did not sign the slip. Rather, this self-effacing man found himself at the center of a maelstrom, simply because he felt forcing his son to submit to urine testing meant that he no longer trusted the boy. Regardless of one's opinion on the issue, it is clear Tannahill's trust in his sons is absolute.

That trust, and the conviction that the drug test was wrong, forged an alliance between the thin Texan and the ACLU. On the other side was the rest of Lockney, gung-ho for testing.

This documentary artfully tells the story without pandering. What comes across is that people genuinely believed the drug tests were the right thing to do. Donald Henslee, the school district's lawyer, likens this to airport security. "When you go into an airport, don't you have a reduced expectation of privacy?" he asks.

Barry Bostwick

Barry Bostwick, who returns as host of PBS' "A Capitol Fourth" on Friday, July 4, took note of the more serious tone of the "National Memorial Day Concert." "There they were in their dark outfits, and I'm going to

Dolly goes to Washington: Parton star of July 4th on PBS

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Just as fireworks light up the sky, Dolly Parton adds sparkle to any stage.

The flamboyant country superstar will join other entertainers in Washington, D.C., to salute America's independence in the annual holiday concert "A Capitol Fourth," airing Friday, July 4, on PBS (check local listings) from the West Lawn of the U.S. Capitol, the 90-minute special will be hosted by actor Barry Bostwick for the sixth consecutive year.

Other scheduled guests include the Irish music group the Chieftains, and bluegrass performers Earl Scruggs and Jerry Douglas, and actor-singers Craig Bierko and Kristin Chenoweth, who starred respectively in Broadway and TV versions of "The Music Man." Erich Kunzel will conduct the National Symphony Orchestra, as he did for the recent National Memorial Day Concert. One highlight will be a tribute to John Williams, the Oscar-winning composer of scores for such movies as "Jaws," "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and "Schindler's List."

Producer Walter Miller, who has overseen variety and country music awards shows, has wanted Parton on the PBS special for years, and this year he finally got his wish. "We've been friends for as long as I've been in Nashville," she says with her distinctive twang. "He's done several shows for me, and we're good buddies, too. This year, he said, 'No more excuses. You're coming on.' I said, 'OK. I'll be there.'"

Beyond that tie, Parton maintains she has wanted to participate in the concert for many years. "Whenever I was invited before, it never worked out for one reason or another," she says. "Either I didn't have a backup group together or I had a movie in the works or something, but I'm glad it worked out this year. With all that's going on in the world, everybody's feeling patriotic - not that we always shouldn't - and I'm working on a patriotic album called 'Forgotten Country,' and I'll do a couple of songs from it on the show. This couldn't work out better."

Being in familiar company on "A Capitol Fourth" is another plus for Parton. "A lot of country artists have worked on the last couple of the Chieftains' albums," she says, "and Jerry Douglas and Earl Scruggs are old friends of mine."

At the same time, Parton welcomes the chance to work with non-country talents. "I have worked in different capacities in the business, so I have run across people like Kristin Chenoweth and Barry Bostwick," she says. "It's always a pleasure to be in there with everybody else, and to feel that what you do is as important as what everyone else does."

"I'm also excited about getting to sing with the National Symphony Orchestra. We sent along our arrangements for the three songs we're going to do, and they're going to add their touches. I love to sing with a symphony, because I never really get to work with a full orchestra, and it makes such a big sound. I just think everybody's going to have a good time."

For his part, Bostwick is excited to share a stage with Parton. "I recently purchased four pictures of her on the Internet," he confides, "so that I can get her to sign something for me. I've got things that run the whole gamut of her career, including one of her first publicity shots where she looks like (the 'L'il Abner' character) Daisy Mae. She's quite a remarkable woman."

A Broadway veteran who has won a Tony Award for "The Robber Bridegroom," Bostwick hopes this "Capitol Fourth" will be a bit different for him than in years past. "After six years," he says, "how many times can you sing 'You're a Grand Old Flag'? That certainly won't prohibit me from doing it again, though. This audience is a lovely, patriotic group of people."

A pairing of Bostwick and fellow Tony winner Chenoweth is possible, though he muses "that would be like Mutt and Jeff. Do you know how short she is? If we did a romantic ballad together, she'd be singing into my belly button. She's wonderful, though."

Star has link to 'Mama's Family' burg

Q "Mama's Family" is one of my favorites. What state was Raytown located in? - L.M. Clark, Stuart, Va.

A The Midwestern state was never specified on the show, but according to series star Vicki Lawrence's autobiography, the town where "Mama's Family" was set was based loosely on Raytown, Mo., a suburb of Kansas City. Lawrence's mother was from Missouri, so the actress wanted to have that personal connection.

Q Please tell me about the actor who played Menelaus in USA Network's recent "Helen of Troy." - Darlene Y., Honolulu.

and "Jason and the Argonauts," not to mention his film role as Tom, the title character's chum in "Bridget Jones's Diary."

And the married, 32-year-old actor will garner even more attention in his upcoming role as villainous Dr. Gaius Baltar in the now-filming miniseries adaptation of the sci-fi cult series "Battlestar Galactica" - or "Biffuddle-

Q The actress who plays Angelica, Federico's sister-in-law, on HBO's "Six Feet Under" looks incredibly familiar. What else has she done? - M. Benham, Boulder, Colo.

A Before her recurring role on "Six Feet Under," actress Melissa Marsala made guest appearances on several series, including "Law & Order," "Angel," "The King of Queens," "That's Life," "NYPD Blue," "The Sopranos," "The Huntress," "Malcolm in the Middle" and "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation."

Her film credits include "White Oleander," "Bringing Out the Dead," "Mickey Blue Eyes" and the new "A Tale of Two Pizzas," scheduled for release this week.

Sara Rue finds life, career only a little less than perfect

By John Crook
© Zap2it

The name of her sitcom may be "Less Than Perfect," but Sara Rue says she has very little to complain about these days.

"It's probably the New Yorker in me, but I start worrying when things go too smoothly," the 24-year-old actress says. "It's like, don't let down your guard or you'll be mugged. But the past year and a half or so has been just magical for me."

This fall, Rue celebrates the second anniversary of her marriage to filmmaker Mischa Livingstone, whom she met through friends. And things are just as sunny on a professional front: Her Tuesday night ABC sitcom has been renewed for a second season, after premiering last autumn to almost no fanfare.

"You know how it is when you find that great restaurant, but it's just this little hole in the wall? And you know every time you go you'll get a good meal? That's what I equate 'Less Than Perfect' with," she says.

The producers are shifting the focus more onto her character's home life next season, Rue adds, and she only welcomes the chance to explore new aspects of resourceful office assistant Claude Casey.

"I told them I could be a leading lady!" she laughs. "Almost from the start I've made a career of playing 'the best friend,' and that was what made Hollywood relatively aware of my work. People take a second look now. I'm getting scripts that I never would have gotten before. I look at some of them and think, 'Really? Are you sure they want me?'"

"What is so great about Claude is that she is a character-actor part who happens to be the star of the show. When they sent me the first script, I kept thumbing through and finally went, 'Oh, my God, she's in every single scene!'"

This new star status has scarcely come overnight to Rue, who made her professional acting debut at age 9 in the movie "Rocket Gibraltar." As the daughter of a Broadway stage manager and a regional theater actress, however, the actress was set on her career path at an early age.

Even as a child, Rue got a vivid impression of life in the theater, traveling with her mother for out-of-town engagements and on national tours with her father. It was a world in which parties were commonplace, and fate tapped her on the shoulder at one such function.

"At an opening night party when I was 8, I had sort of walked ahead of my parents and an agent just came up and asked if I wanted to be on TV, and I said, 'Yeah, sounds good!'" Rue recalls. "My parents agreed to let me go on one audition. About a year later, I got an audition (for 'Rocket Gibraltar'), and, after several callbacks, I got the part. My parents were just dumbfounded, but they let me do it. And I loved everything about it."

Her work in "Gibraltar" helped win Rue a co-starring role as Pamela Reed's daughter in the NBC cult sitcom "Grand," then a dark movie comedy "Passed Away," in which she played Bob Hoskins' daughter. The English actor left a profound impression on Rue, who was 13 at the time.

"He was just wonderful to me, taking me to theater openings and introducing me as his daughter so we wouldn't have to talk about what we were doing (to reporters)," Rue says.

"I was very frustrated at the time because I was too young to be allowed in adult acting classes and I hated the kid classes, and he said, 'The best thing you can do is travel around the world and meet and talk with as many people as you possibly can. Then come back and be an actress.' He's right, because that's where acting comes from: people. The more varied your experience with and your knowledge of people, the more you have to draw from in any acting situation. I'll never forget that."

If anything about the past several months has, in fact, been less than perfect for Rue, it was the outcome of her April appearance on the popular cable series "Trading Spaces," in which she and a team redecorated "Perfect" co-star Andy Dick's kitchen while Dick and another team redid Rue's home office. Dick wound up with a kitchen to die for, but Rue nearly collapsed when she saw designer Genevieve Gorder's bleak remodeling of the office, which included actual rust as a design motif.

"I was bummed out," Rue admits. "When the cameras were turned off, I went to my room to compose myself and take a breath. I didn't want to overreact because, I mean, it's a room. It's just a room. But I couldn't help thinking 'My God, they did this on purpose!' I figured they were looking for some sort of extreme reaction, because they gave me exactly what I asked them not to do.

Sara Rue stars as office assistant Claude Casey in "Less Than Perfect" Tuesdays on NBC. Next season, the sitcom will focus more on Claude's personal life.

"I expressly told them, 'I don't want gray, black or brown,' and I got gray and brown. It was really bad. I'm even afraid to touch the filing cabinets because of the rust."

The producers swore to Rue that they had not sabotaged her space intentionally, but, when time permits, the actress fully intends to return her office to something that looks a little less post-apocalyptic.

"Every now and then my husband and I just stick our heads in the door and go 'Aaaaugh!'" she says.

"Andy felt so badly that he took me to dinner a couple of nights later because he wanted to make sure I wasn't mad at him. And you know what? I just knew this would happen, that Andy would goof around, do no work and wind up with an incredible room. That is just pure Andy Dick for you."

Personal identity obscured in 'The Nazi Officer's Wife'

Sometimes, the best place to hide is in plain sight.

In 1942, a young Austrian Jew dodged the Gestapo and the horrors of the Holocaust by transforming herself - with the help of a Nazi officer - into a German. She later married another Nazi officer and survived World War II in the heart of the Third Reich.

The improbable but true story of Edith Hahn Beer comes to A&E Network Sunday, June 29, as "The Nazi Officer's Wife," a two-hour documentary based on her autobiography. Susan Sarandon narrates, and Julia Ormond reads selections from Hahn Beer's book.

After being sent to a forced labor camp and factory in northern Germany, Hahn Beer enlisted the help of a non-Jewish friend to get new papers. She was sent to the home of a Nazi officer.

"His sons let me in," Hahn Beer recalls. "He was in Nazi uniform. He said, 'You are lucky, because tomorrow I go back to North Africa.' I told him the truth."

"The truth was," writer-director Liz Garbus says, "I'm a Jew on the run from the Gestapo." He's a high-ranking officer, and she's saying this.

"He told me what I could do, in a quarter of an hour," Hahn Beer says. "I said, 'Thank you.' He didn't ask for money. He didn't ask for anything. I haven't seen him again."

"Obviously, he did it before," interjects Angela Schluter, Hahn Beer's daughter. "It could have been a trap. He, in 10 minutes, just went down a list of complicated ways and means of what to do and how to do it. I would have to think about the recipe for a cake not to forget any item, but he must have done it before, the way he reeled it off in such a short time, without thinking."

With new identification as 20-year-old Greta Denner, Hahn Beer got on a train for Munich. Eventually, she met Nazi officer Werner Vetter. The two moved in together, with Hahn Beer concealing her true identity. But when she became pregnant, he wanted to wed.

"I told when he proposed marriage to me," Hahn Beer says. "At first, I tried to get rid of him, but I couldn't and I couldn't. Then, he wanted to meet my father. I couldn't produce a father, and then I told him the real truth. He said, 'It doesn't matter.'"

"That's one of the ironies," Garbus says. "He needed to be married to her because he felt, as a Nazi Party member, that it was not proper to live with a woman and not be married, yet the woman he is living with is a Jew."

Vetter kept Hahn Beer's secret, and in return, she sublimated her personality and her intellect.

"I never talked to him about what I had learned or my education," Hahn Beer says.

"With him," Schluter says, "you don't have a different opinion. You don't. He's a dictator, and this is just what he wanted."

After the war, the Vettters divorced, and Hahn Beer raised her daughter as a Jew in England. But when she was 16, Schluter was sent to her father (who died before the filmmakers could track him down) for six months.

"One of the first things he said to me," she recalls, "a few days after I arrived - a virtual stranger to him - that I was the living proof Hitler was right. He said that Hitler said the Jewish genes were stronger, and I was the living proof because I looked like my mother and not like him. I just didn't have an answer to this at 16."

As to whether she loved Vetter, Hahn Beer says, "I don't know. I can't answer that. I got used to him, and he treated me fairly. We lived in peace."

Edith Hahn Beer's harrowing story of survival is told in "The Nazi Officer's Wife," an A&E Network documentary based on her autobiography. Premiering Sunday, it details how the Austrian Jew living in World War II Germany assumed a new identity and religion.

Valentine looks back on Yankees-Mets rivalry

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

Seven years into its existence, interleague play is still a hot topic of debate.

Proponents point to the natural rivalries it takes advantage of, such as Yankees-Mets, White Sox-Cubs and Dodgers-Angels, and the fan furor those series create, which in turn translates into a healthier bottom line in the form of increased TV ratings and ticket and merchandise sales.

Detractors, however, contend that for every Yankees-Mets game, interleague play also generates matchups that have no apparent reason for being, like Rockies-Mariners, Rangers-Giants and Expos-Devil Rays. They will also argue that it disrupts the schedule, creating a lot of two-game series and much unnecessary travel.

This week, ESPN broadcasts one of the marquee interleague games when the New York Yankees play the New York Mets at Yankee Stadium on Sunday, June 29. "Baseball Tonight" analyst Bobby Valentine, who had a front-row seat for the mid-season Subway Series as manager of the Mets from 1996 through 2002, says the effect he saw interleague play had on the fans of New York was undeniable. "Oh, the fans loved it," he says. "I think baseball decided to do it for the fans, and in New York it was a bonanza. It was exactly what the fans wanted. I think the Met fans wanted it a lot more than the Yankee fans wanted it, yet when we got to Shea Stadium, there were more Yankee fans. They, somehow, bought all the tickets up and tried to make it a home-field advantage at Shea Stadium."

Valentine recalls that early on, his players were as enthralled with the crosstown rivalry as the fans. "I think the first two years it was a real added boost in the season, when sometimes the doldrums would set in by about June. But this was very special, and the guys loved it."

But the competition wasn't always friendly. Take, for instance, the Roger Clemens-Mike Piazza incidents of 2000 that nearly culminated in fisticuffs in that year's World Series. Despite the many things written about a feud between the two superstars, Valentine feels the rivalry was confined to the field. "I never really sensed a lot of animosity," he says. "There was a lot of competition, that's for sure."

Toward that end, Valentine remembers having no trouble keeping the Mets motivated whenever they played the Yankees. "I think playing in the same city is pretty much enough," he says. "You read about the other guys and you watch the other guys on the news clips and on ESPN. There's always references made about the other team, so it's an easy rivalry. I don't think you have to look for the other things. I think it's just natural, when you play in the same city, that you want to win the series."

Valentine's "Baseball Tonight" cohort, Harold Reynolds, can't argue with interleague play's effect in cities like New York and Chicago. He just doesn't like what it does in many other cities. "Unless it is one of the matchups like the Mets and Yankees, it just doesn't generate enough interest," says Reynolds, a former Major League infielder. "For every Cubs-Yankees series, there is a San Diego-Detroit matchup. It's also a scheduling nightmare. If there is a rainout, there is an immediate need for a doubleheader. It's brutal when considering the travel for the teams."

Reynolds also feels that the effort to take advantage of regional rivalries sometimes has the unintended effect of giving some teams an advantage in pennant races. "The bottom line is that it's not fair to the pennant races," he says. "For example, Seattle plays San Diego six times and Oakland plays San Francisco six times. How is that fair? Those kinds of scenarios can really impact a pennant race."

And as for the argument that interleague play gives fans a chance to see teams they ordinarily wouldn't, Reynolds counters, "I would have bought into that a few years ago, but I think everybody has a cable team and they see their favorite players on a regular basis. Overall, interleague play takes away from the excitement of the World Series."

But Reynolds can't deny the allure interleague play has in a city like New York. "I think it is great. There really isn't anything wrong with a matchup like the Subway Series. It may not generate a lot of buzz this year outside of New York, but it is great for the city of New York."

"Chicago Cubs at Philadelphia Phillies" Monday, June 30 (ESPN, 7 p.m. ET): The season is three months old, yet two of the National League's top teams have yet to meet - until tonight, that is. The Cubs travel to Philadelphia to begin a four-game set, and Slamin' Sammy Sosa is sure to hear an earful from Philly fans about his corked bat transgression. What may be worrying Sosa more is his decline as a power hitter. From last August 18 to June 9, Sosa went from a home run every 10 at bats to one every 22 times at bat.

"U.S. Women's Open, First Round" Thursday, July 3 (ESPN, 4 p.m. ET): The U.S. Women's Open, the third of four majors on the LPGA Tour, tees off today from Pumpkin Ridge Golf Club in North Plains, Ore. Juli Inkster penned another chapter in her Hall of Fame career in this tournament last year, carding a Sunday 66 to overtake Annika Sorenstam and win by two. It was Inkster's second Open win, the same number Sorenstam has captured in her 10 years on tour. Sorenstam celebrated another major win in June's LPGA Championship.

"Wimbledon, Women's Final" Saturday, July 5 (NBC, 9 a.m. ET): Let's face it, what NBC - and probably most tennis fans - is hoping for is a sister act in today's Wimbledon final. The popularity of Serena and Venus Williams was illustrated last year when the all-Williams title match produced a 28 percent hike in ratings. A same-bracket pairing may prevent a rematch, not the Williams' will, which was hardened after Venus' fourth-round exit and Serena's semifinal loss in the French Open.

Monster House

At the request of a couple homesick for England, builders transform a three-bedroom tract home into something fit for a king and queen from the Middle Ages. While they don't exactly turn the house into a castle, they add some medieval touches that make all the difference, including a palace-size hearth with the TV set in the fireplace; a table that operates like a drawbridge; and, of course, a pair of thrones.

Movie: Big

The child in actor Tom Hanks surfaces in this 1988 film about a boy trapped in a man's body. When a small 13-year-old makes a wish to be big, it comes true — literally. While the boy searches for a cure to his maturity spurt, he must live in the adult world. He climbs the executive ladder in a toy firm, and finds a girlfriend in a cynical co-worker played by Elizabeth Perkins.

TV Trivia

Gia Carides ("My Big Fat Greek Life") has been a film, TV and stage actress since she was 12, and divides work between Australia and the U.S.

Jeremy Sisto ("Caesar") now stars in movies, but early on he was in Twisted Sister's famous video, "We're Not Gonna Take It."

Julia Ormond ("The Nazi Officer's Wife") wanted to become an abstract artist like her grandparents, but quit art school after a year.

Ellen Muth ("Dead Like Me") is a member of Mensa and takes some risks on the road when she races six-speed cars.

Kristin Davis ("Sex and the City") graduated from New Jersey's Rutgers University, where her father was a psychology professor.

Sunday Best Bets

7 p.m. and BRAV

Inside the Actors Studio

When John Travolta was a recent guest on this program, he was thrilled to be introduced to a certain audience member: actress Jeanne Moreau. She gets her own session with series host James Lipton in this new episode, as she reflects on her reputation as one of France's defining stars of her generation. She also discusses her work with director Francois Truffaut ("Julius and Jim," "The Bride Wore Black").

7 p.m. and TNT

Movie: Caesar

Julius Caesar's name is literally a synonym for great leader, spawning the German word "Kaiser" and the Russian "czar." This new two-part drama traces the Roman general-turned-emperor's rise to power and his dramatic fall at the hands of assassins. Jeremy Sisto, Richard Harris, Christopher Walken and Valeria Golino star. The conclusion airs Monday.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

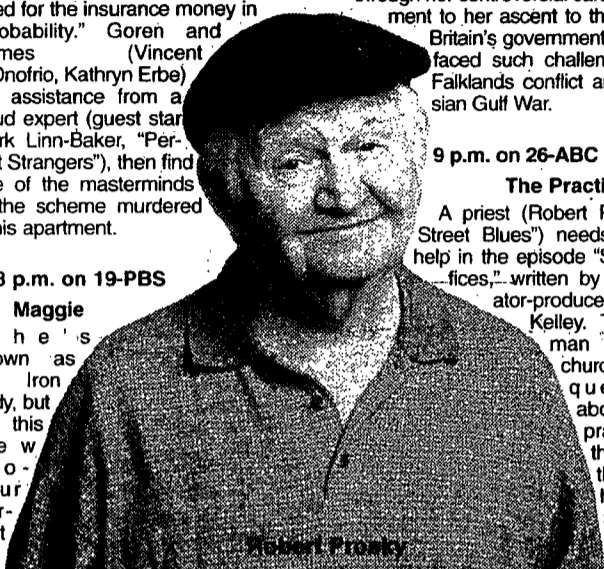

Law & Order: Criminal Intent

Homeless people are set up to impersonate foreign businessmen and then killed for the insurance money in "Probability." Goren and Eames (Vincent D'Onofrio, Kathryn Erbe) get assistance from a fraud expert (guest star Mark Linn-Baker, "Perfect Strangers"), then find one of the masterminds of the scheme murdered in his apartment.

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Maggie

She's known as the Iron Lady, but as this new two-hour portrait reveals, former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher displayed her steely determination even as a girl. The program traces Thatcher's life from her childhood through her controversial career in Parliament to her ascent to the top job in Britain's government, where she faced such challenges as the Falklands conflict and the Persian Gulf War.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

The Practice

A priest (Robert Prosky, "Hill Street Blues") needs the firm's help in the episode "Small Sacrifices," written by series creator-producer David E. Kelley. The clergyman and his church are being questioned about their practices, to the degree that they have been named in a lawsuit.

All My Children

When Mary asked for another chance with Jack he stated that he's committed to Erica. Greenlee was determined to uncover Mary's agenda, while Erica hired Tad to dig up dirt about Mary. Although guilty over using Carlos, Greenlee subtly blackmailed Diane into giving preferential treatment to Fusion by pretending to know her secret. Mia volunteered to get closer to Michael to uncover information, and wore a hidden microphone to her meeting with him. Reggie admitted to Joni that he stole the supplies but insisted he had no choice. Michael set up Lena, who was arrested for insider trading. David talked tough to Doug about his treatment of Laurie. Coming: Carlos breaks up with Greenlee.

As the World Turns

Bob accused someone of being the murderer, then collapsed, comatose, as he tried to reveal something to Hal. Rick was suspected of trying to kill Bob, but after Rick called Susan to say he found Nurse Krebs' missing journal, he was discovered on the floor with no heartbeat. After Brackett took Dusty to Washington, a man arrived who turned out to be the real FBI agent. With Sage softening their hostility, Carly asked Rosanna to be his godmother. Coming: Molly takes a fateful trip.

Bold and Beautiful

Massimo finally got Jackie to accept his apology as they remembered a special day from their past and realized that Jackie's husband had kept them apart all these years. As Massimo's plane developed technical problems, Jackie revealed that Nick is Massimo's son. Jackie was left comatose from the plane crash. Massimo didn't tell Nick about their relationship but Ridge was shocked to hear the news. Coming: Ridge deals with Massimo's revelation.

Days of Our Lives

In order to get the diamonds he needs, Tony asked Rex to go into business with him. Wanting desperately to be a DiMera, Rex accepted. After learning that Vin made a deal for a reduced sentence, Bo received a threatening call from him. Thinking about Sami, a frustrated Lucas kissed Cassie, but pulled back when she wanted to go further. After Lucas admitted he wished he could have saved Sami from the accident, they shared a hug. Coming: Bo and Hope face danger together.

General Hospital

Lucky was devastated over Summer's death and originally thought Luke was responsible, but realized that Stefan was framing Luke for the murder, and informed Scott. Lucky later confronted Lydia about working with Stefan against Nikolas. Carly watched on the monitor as Faith poisoned a pitcher of lemonade, which Elizabeth drank. Faith was arrested for attempted murder as Mac overheard her admit her guilt to Ric. Coming: Jason gets closer to finding Carly.

Guiding Light

Eden blamed Danny when Gus told her she should live in her own place. Meanwhile, Ben found an ominous note and brought it to Gus, who believed the killer might be targeting Ben. Phillip didn't believe Olivia's claim that he fathered her baby and ordered her to move out. Phillip then stunned Alan by insisting that Alan is the father, but Olivia explained to Alan that Phillip's the dad. Cassie accused Jeffrey of hanging around her but he insisted that she's not his type. Coming: Olivia attempts to set things straight with Phillip.

One Life to Live

Joey accused Rex of being after Jen's money, and Rex proved him right by stealing Jen's credit card. However, after Joey told Jen he wants them to be friends, a hurt Jen agreed to elope with Rex. In Atlantic City, Rex got rid of Joey by lying that he and Jen were already wed, then took his vows with her. Mitch killed Brian as he tried to help Jessica and Viki escape from the mansion, but was then captured by the police. Coming: Nora becomes suspicious of Lindsay and Troy.

Passions

Liz convinced T.C. to allow her to stay in his house, much to Eve's chagrin. Vowing to destroy Eve, Liz got the proof she needed when she took a picture of Eve and Julian kissing and prepared to show it to T.C. Ethan was stunned to hear Theresa admit her true feelings for him and swore to Gwen that he loves only her, crushing Theresa. Sheridan sank further into despair in the pit. Luis told Sam why he believes Sheridan was kidnapped and the search resumed. Meanwhile, Beth and Charlie soundproofed the basement and warned Mrs. Wallace not to interfere. Coming: Lives are at risk in a raging fire.

Port Charles

Lucy prepared to die, while Caleb told Ian that Lucy needs the blood of an angel to save her life. Frank wanted to get back together with Karen and turned her into a vampire. As Karen fled from Frank, she was hit by a car and rushed to the hospital, where Lucy saw an image of an angelic Karen at her bedside. Alison slashed Rafe when she saw an image of Joshua while looking at Rafe. Casey confessed to Rick that she loves him, but disappeared after they became intimate. Coming: Alison is ready to give Joshua what he wants.

Young and Restless

Diane realized that Michael is trying to shield Chris from the investigation into Isabella's disappearance, but resolved to tell the police about Chris' conflict with Isabella. Meanwhile, the police started to focus on Mary when they saw her with cuts and bruises and she was uncooperative regarding her whereabouts. Stunned and broken-hearted to learn that they are cousins, Billy and Mac both decided to leave town. Mac was shocked when Kay spoke, wishing her good luck. Victoria wasn't happy to hear that Nick accepted Victor's offer and they had to work together on suggestions to deal with Satine's plummeting sales. Coming: Colleen considers giving J.T. another chance.

Actor Mathison returns with a vengeance

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

There were rumors of recasting, but Cameron Mathison will return to Pine Valley in the role of Ryan Lavery in July. Mathison's female fans undoubtedly want to know when his first shirtless scene takes place, but "All My Children" only is revealing that Ryan definitely reconnects with old friends and enemies.

After leaving the show in 2002, Mathison made guest appearances on several prime-time series, including "JAG."

In other news: "Passions" has a new Jessica Bennett. Danica Stewart has taken over the role, which recently was played by Jade Harlow. Stewart briefly played Maxie Jones in "General Hospital," and has guest-starred in "CSI: Miami" and the original "CSI." The actress's first appearance in "Passions" is Thursday, July 10.

Dear Candace: I would like to know if Doug Davidson (Paul Williams, "The Young and the Restless") is related to Eileen Davidson, who plays Ashley in "Y&R." -Kenneth Manning via the Internet.

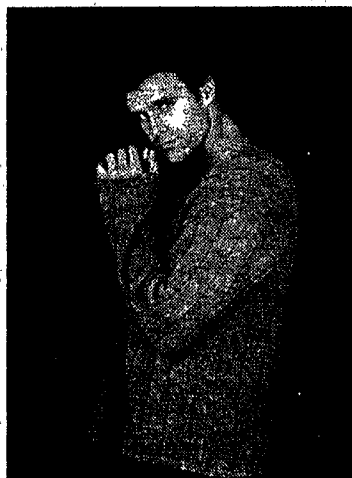

Dear Reader: The actors are not related.

Dear Candace: I'm so confused about "General Hospital." I'm hoping you can help me out. The character Emily (Natalla Livingston) just came back to the show. As far back as I can remember, Emily has always talked to Monica (Leslie Charleson) as if she was her mother. But then the other day, I heard them talk about someone named Paige. Can you tell me who Paige is? And if Paige is Emily's mother, then how can Monica be her mom? -Melinda S. in Texas

Dear Reader: When Monica had breast cancer in 1994, she went to a wellness place in Arizona. That's where she met Paige Bowen (Riley Steiner). When Paige realized she was going to lose her battle with cancer, she asked Monica to look after her daughter. Monica moved both women into the Quartermaine mansion and cared for Paige until she died.

Later on, Monica and Alan Quartermaine (Stuart Damon) adopted Emily.

In the conclusion of the 1999 documentary "Not for Ourselves Alone: The Story of Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony," the effects of Stanton and Anthony's women's-rights efforts are evident. Arguably, the biggest result was the ratification of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, giving women the right to vote.

Movie: The Love Bug

Anyone who ever wished for a car with a mind of its own quickly will develop affection for Herbie, the personable Volkswagen that drives this 1968 Disney comedy classic. Dean Jones plays the nominal person behind the steering wheel, but Herbie does his own thing, especially when it comes to beating a sinister rival (David Tomlinson, "Mary Poppins") in a big race. Michele Lee, Buddy Hackett and Joe Flynn co-star.

My Big, Wild, You're-Not-Gonna-Believe-This Wedding

Four couples head for the altar, albeit in very different ways, as Diane Sawyer tracks their wedding plans in this new special. Jennifer's groom, Tom, is the son of a Miami hotelier who will host their nuptials. Denny, a native of India now living in California, prepares for an arranged marriage. Laura and Bryan get ready to enter an interracial union. Ami and Brad endure numerous crises en route to taking their vows.

Meet My Folks

"The Dappers" is a two-part special outing of the reality dating series. Marco Dapper, a California student, is the man of the hour. He's planning a trip to Greece with the winner of a five-way competition, which includes singing at a nightclub and having unflattering information about the contestants posted in public. As always, the decision is up to Marco's parents, who will vote out two of the players tonight.

7 p.m. on 4-CBS

JAG

Harm (David James Elliott) and his co-counsel (Tamlyn Tomita) clash over their defense of a female pilot charged with sexual harassment in "Offensive Action." Harm thinks the client may be guilty of having threatened a crew member who wouldn't submit to her alleged wishes, but the other attorney believes her claim of innocence. Isabella Hofmann ("Homicide: Life on the Street") guest stars.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Gilmore Girls

How many Thanksgiving meals can you eat on the holiday? For Lorelai and Rory (Lauren Graham, Alexis Bledel), the magic number is four in "A Deep-Fried Korean Thanksgiving." They spend the day dining with everyone from Luke (Scott Patterson) to Richard and Emily (Edward Herrmann, Kelly Bishop). Seasonal spirit doesn't keep Dean and Jess (Jared Padalecki, Milo Ventimiglia) from continuing to feud over Rory.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Nova

With the Fourth of July fast approaching, "Fireworks!" examines what goes into the dazzling displays of color in the sky. The creation of fireworks takes definite skill and extreme caution, as confirmed almost yearly by news stories about people injured through their unfamiliarity with handling them.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Keen Eddie

Eddie and Monty (Mark Valley, Julian Rhind-Tutt) set out to infiltrate a secretive, brutal fight club — and may end up paying with their lives — in the new episode "Sucker Punch." Fiona (Sienna Miller) decides to exit London for New York, leaving Eddie with a new roommate whose similarity to him is unnerving.

8 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

According to Jim

Jim (Jim Belushi) becomes atypically generous in "Moral Dilemma," treating Cheryl (Courtney Thorne-Smith) to a surprisingly extravagant weekend getaway.

She's in for a bigger surprise, though: The excursion is being funded by money incorrectly assigned to Jim's credit card — and he's aware of the error.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

Lex (Michael Rosenbaum) finds an apparent soul-mate in Lucas (guest star Paul Wasilewski, "Wolf Lake"), his brother given up by Lionel (John Glover) for adoption long ago, in "Prodigal." Fearing the siblings are scheming against him, Lionel takes action that imperils them all. Clark's (Tom Welling) new job at the Talon begins to impact his friendship with Lana (Kristin Kreuk).

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

National Geographic

The president of the United States may not be the highest-paid CEO in the country, but he does have the coolest "company" jet. "Air Force One" offers an intimate look inside the specially appointed 747 where safety precautions don't stop with seat belts and oxygen masks. President George W. Bush and former Presidents Jimmy Carter, Bill Clinton and "Dubya's" dad talk about the "flying White House."

8 p.m. on USA

Movie: Clueless

Alicia Silverstone gives a star-is-born performance in this deft, improbably charming 1995 rewrite of Jane Austen's "Emma." Silverstone plays Cher Horowitz, a privileged Beverly Hills, Calif.,

8:30 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

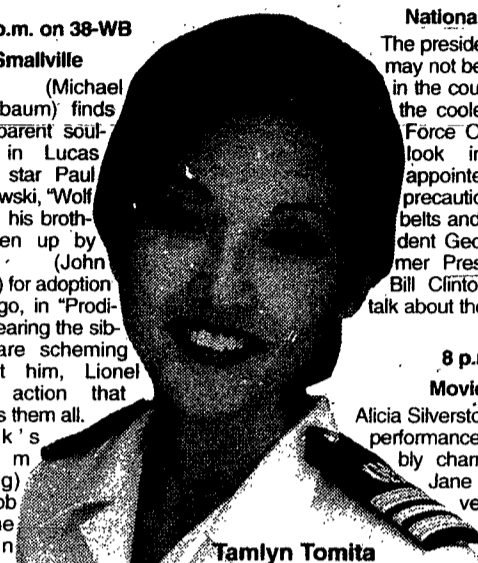

Less Than Perfect

Claude (Sara Rue) gets to prove her technical expertise — or lack thereof — as she helps Kipp (Zachary Levi) assemble an audition tape in "A Claude Casey Production." Her heart is in the project, even if demonstrable skills aren't. Lydia (Andrea Parker) recalls a memorable, and intensely personal, evening she shared with Will (Eric Roberts).

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

P.O.V.

The new documentary "Larry v. Lockney" tells the story of a Texas father who fought his school board and his community to protest mandatory drug testing. When school officials instituted the policy in 2000, Larry Tannahill refused to sign the consent form that would allow his 12-year-old son to be tested.

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

That '70s Show

Eric and Donna (Topher Grace, Laura Prepon) are eager to share their engagement joy with their families at Thanksgiving in "Thank You." They may not have the chance, though; Eric gets in trouble for forging a school note. Kelso (Ashton Kutcher) brings a surprising guest to dinner. Television favorites Betty White ("The Golden Girls") and Tom Poston ("Newhart") guest star.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Boarding House: North Shore

A night of partying in Waikiki gets out of hand in this new episode, leaving Holly holding the bag for hotel-room damage actually done by Veronica and company. The situation doesn't help the already strained relations between the two women. Holly feels added pressure in trying to prove herself against Chelsea and Layne in their next surfing competition. Sunny unleashes her pent-up frustrations on an innocent Hawaiian local.

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Ken Burns American Stories

"The Statue of Liberty" is documentary master Burns' Oscar-nominated profile recalling the conception and construction of the New York landmark. Transported from France, it has remained one of the United States' greatest symbols. Singer Ray Charles, director Milos Forman and former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo offer comments. Author and historian David McCullough narrates.

7 p.m. on USA

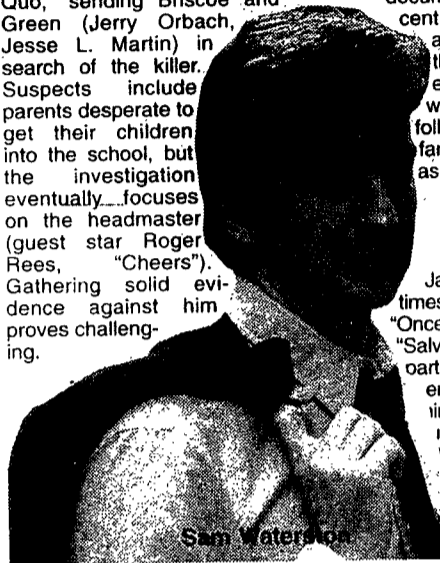

Movie: Terminator 2: Judgment Day

He said, "I'll be back," and he is. In this 1991 sequel — being shown the same day the third chapter opens in theaters — Arnold Schwarzenegger's Terminator is a good guy, sent back in time to protect the boy (Edward Furlong) whose conception he tried to prevent in the first "Terminator" film. But he has company: an evil cyborg (Robert Patrick), with even more gadgets and gimmicks, who's out to kill the youngster.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

A private elementary school's admissions chief is murdered in "Kid Pro Quo," sending Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) in search of the killer. Suspects include parents desperate to get their children into the school, but the investigation eventually focuses on the headmaster (guest star Roger Rees, "Cheers"). Gathering solid evidence against him proves challenging.

Sam Waterston

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

West Point

One of the United States' best-known institutions is showcased in this documentary, which traces the two-century-old history of the military academy. The program examines the strong sense of fraternity that exists among the site's cadets, as well as the strict rules they must follow. Also featured are profiles of famous West Point dropouts such as Edgar Allan Poe.

8 p.m. and DSC

Moments in Time

James Woods has visited other times and places in such movies as "Once Upon a Time in America" and "Salvador," but he actually becomes part of history as host of this new series. Dramatizations and computer animation transport him through various eras. The premiere episode, "Valley Forge: The Crucible," lands him in the midst of the 1777-78 battle near Philadelphia between British forces and Gen. George Washington's troops.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

The stabbing death of a cab driver prompts Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) to search for his last fare in "Genius." The passenger turns out to be a violent ex-convict with a talent for writing, giving McCoy and Southerlyn (Sam Waterston, Elisabeth Rohm) a major challenge in their prosecution. Sonia Braga ("Kiss of the Spider Woman") guest stars.

9 p.m. on TBS

Movie: The Crow

This dark 1994 melodrama largely is remembered for the tragic end of its star — Bruce Lee's son, Brandon Lee — who died in a freak accident on the set. Ironically, the plot revolves around a rock star who is killed, then returns from the dead to avenge his murder and that of his fiancée. The film yielded several movie sequels and a weekly TV spinoff. Ernie Hudson ("Oz"), Rochelle Davis and Michael Wincott co-star.

Movie: The Love Letter

An unsigned love letter causes all sorts of confusion in this 1999 romantic comedy. Helen (Kate Capshaw, "How to Make an American Quilt"), an emotionally distant woman, thinks a young friend (Tom Everett Scott, "That Thing You Do!") wrote the letter. He, in turn, thinks she did. Getting in the middle is George (Tom Selleck), who has long been in love with Helen. Ellen DeGeneres co-stars.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Movie: Air Bud: Seventh Inning Fetch

One of several made-for-the-family tales about an athletically inclined dog, this 2002 movie originally debuted on home video. The sister (Caitlin Wachs, "Family Affair") of Buddy's original owner (Kevin Zegers) finds the canine helpful to her junior-high baseball team. Buddy also has "101 Dalmatians"-style concerns as he tries to find several kidnapped puppies.

7:30 p.m. on 6-NBC

Scrubs

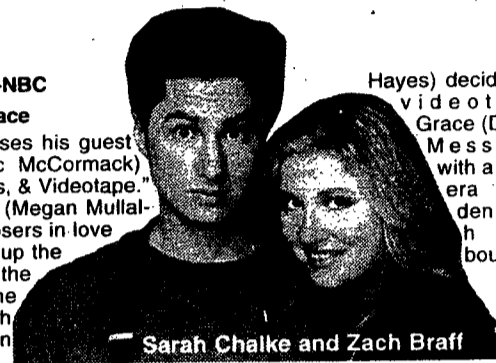

When Elliot (Sarah Chalke) needs his shoulder to lean on, J.D. (Zach Braff) isn't sure he can remain strictly platonic with her in "My New Old Friend." Dr. Cox and Carla (John C. McGinley, Judy Reyes) recognize how much personal distance has developed between them as they deal with a hypochondriac.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

Gene Wilder reprises his guest role as Will's (Eric McCormack) boss in "Sex, Losers, & Videotape." He, Will and Karen (Megan Mullally) start a club for losers in love. P but Will may end up the lone member when the other two become interested in each other. Jack (Sean Hayes) decides to videotape Grace (Debra Messing) with a camera hidden in her boudoir.

Sarah Chalke and Zach Braff

A Capitol Fourth

This year's celebration from the grounds of the U.S. Capitol includes Irish-flavored tunes from the Chieftains, country songs from Dolly Parton and show-stoppers from Broadway star Kristin Chenoweth. Erich Kunzel conducts the National Symphony Orchestra in, among other things, a tribute to movie composer John Williams. Actor Barry Bostwick ("Spin City") hosts; Broadway's recent "Music Man," Craig Bierko, also performs.

Movie: Planet of the Apes

This 1968 sci-fi classic earned Academy Award nominations for its costumes and music, and an honorary Oscar for the masterful makeup work. Charlton Heston, Roddy McDowall, Kim Hunter and James Whitmore star in the tale of astronauts who crash-land on a planet where apes rule and humans are treated like animals. The ending ranks as one of sci-fi cinema's most unforgettable.

Macy's 4th of July Fireworks Spectacular

LeAnn Rimes

Mention Macy's outside New York, and most people think of the famous Thanksgiving Day parade. But lately, the department store has been expanding its sponsorship into other holiday celebrations, such as this Independence Day event. The theme is "The Lights of Freedom"; Carson Daly serves as host, and guests include Harrison Ford, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Sheryl Crow, Beyonce Knowles, Reese Witherspoon and Kelly Clarkson.

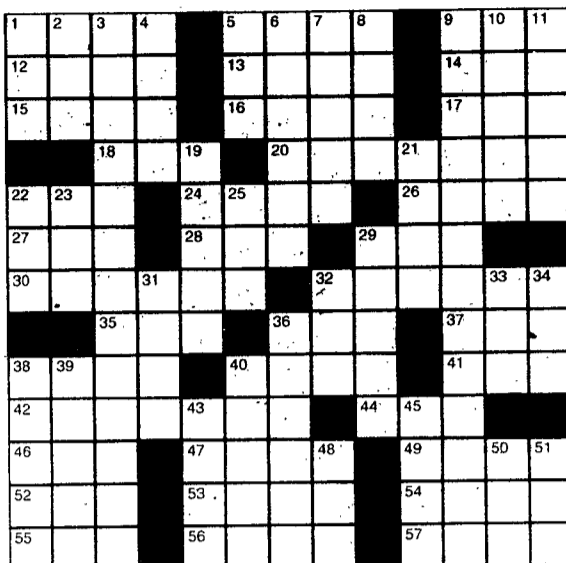

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

Boston Pops Fireworks Spectacular

After many Independence Days on A&E Network, the orchestra switches networks to present its traditional July 4th salute. Keith Lockhart conducts the musicians at the Charles River Esplanade in Boston, with LeAnn Rimes and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir as guests. Harry Smith ("The Early Show") hosts the special, which concludes — as usual — with the 1812 Overture and a huge fireworks display.

NASCAR Racing

Recent history has shown the team of Michael Waltrip and Dale Earnhardt Jr. is virtually unbeatable in restrictor plate races. The Pepsi 400, the third of four such events on NASCAR's schedule, takes place tonight from Daytona International Speedway, where Waltrip outdueled his partner to win a year ago. He also won this year's Daytona 500, making it seven wins in the last nine "plate" races for either Waltrip or Earnhardt Jr.

7 p.m. on BRAV

Movie: Apocalypse Now Redux

Director Francis Ford Coppola expanded his classic 1979 Vietnam War drama with this 2000 revision. It adds an hour to the saga of a military man (Martin Sheen) sent into the jungle to eliminate — "with extreme prejudice" — a renegade officer (Marlon Brando) who has established his own dynasty. Based on Joseph Conrad's "Heart of Darkness," the moody film also stars Robert Duvall, Frederic Forrest and Scott Glenn.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Stuart Little 2

Michael J. Fox returns to give voice to the mouse adopted by a human family in this charming 2002 sequel. Stuart befriends a little bird (voice of Melanie Griffith) who, unbeknownst to him, is being forced to work for the sinister Falcon (voice of James Woods). When his new friend vanishes, he believes she's

Dragnet

A Hollywood starlet (guest star Sarah Wayne Callies) is devastated when her fiancé is fatally stabbed in "The Brass Ring." Friday and Smith (Ed O'Neill, Ethan Embry) target multiple suspects as they launch their investigation of the murder; the people they question range from a movie-studio chief to a drug dealer. Other guest stars include Lisa Zane and Diane Baker.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"GANGS OF NEW YORK": The word "epic" has to be used for director Martin Scorsese's sprawling drama about rival mid-19th-century street gangs. Leonardo DiCaprio stars as a young man out to avenge his father's (Liam Neeson) murder by going after the killer, the colorful Bill the Butcher (show-stealer Daniel Day-Lewis). The hero still finds time for romance with an alluring pickpocket (Cameron Diaz). Jim Broadbent and John C. Reilly co-star, and U2 performs the theme song, "The Hands That Built America." DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by Scorsese; "making-of" documentaries; U2 music video.  (R: AS, P, V)

"HOW TO LOSE A GUY IN 10 DAYS": A Doris Day-type romantic comedy, this light but entertaining tale casts Kate Hudson as a magazine reporter seeking firsthand experience for a story on getting dumped by a new beau in 10 days. She attracts an advertising executive (Matthew McConaughey), who's just made a bet that he can lure a woman into falling in love with him - within the same time frame. Bebe Neuwirth, Robert Klein and Kathryn Mahn ("Crossing Jordan") co-star. DVD extras: audio commentary by director Donald Petrie; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"THE REAL CANCUN": Just as this movie - an offshoot of the MTV reality series "The Real World" - wasted no time getting into theaters, since it was filmed during the past spring-break season, it's hitting home video almost as rapidly. Cameras follow 16 U.S. college students as they live it up in Cancun, Mexico. Some suffer major consequences, particularly one young man who had never touched a drink in his life before he got to his vacation destination. Watch how fast THAT changes. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; filmmakers' commentary; deleted scenes.  (R: AS, N, P)

"MY VOYAGE TO ITALY": Director Martin Scorsese's work in films has been influenced by other filmmakers, particularly those who have hailed from his ancestors' homeland. In this engrossing documentary, Scorsese reflects on the impact made on him by screen legends such as Federico Fellini ("La Dolce Vita"), Vittorio De Sica ("The Bicycle Thief") and Luchino Visconti ("Death in Venice"). Extended clips from the other directors' works are underscored by Scorsese's commentary. DVD extras: additional audio commentary by Scorsese. * (PG-13: AS, V)

"I LOVE LUCY: SEASON ONE, VOLUMES 7 AND 8": DVD releases of one of television's most classic comedy series continue, as Lucy and Ricky Ricardo (Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz) have more misadventures on their own or with friends Ethel and Fred Mertz (Vivian Vance, William Frawley). Volume Seven finds Lucy hard-pressed to keep a secret in "Gossip," but Volume Eight boasts one of TV's all-time-great episodes as she consumes a potent tonic called Vitameatavegamin while doing a commercial. DVD extras: additional footage; outtakes; audio featurette and radio broadcasts. * (Not rated)

"KING OF THE HILL: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": The first-year episodes of the long-running, animated Fox comedy series are compiled in a three-disc DVD set. "Beavis and Butt-head" mentor Mike Judge, the show's creator, also supplies the voice of Texas family patriarch and propane-gas salesman Henry Hill. His wife (voice of Kathy Najimy), their children (voices of Brittany Murphy and Pamela Segall) and their neighbors keep him on his toes more than he'd like to be. DVD extras: audio commentary by Judge on selected episodes; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes; "Bareheaded Ladies" music video; TV ads. * (Not rated: AS)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"BASIC" (July 8): An investigator (John Travolta) tries to determine what has become of a much-hated Army drill sergeant (Samuel L. Jackson) who is missing. (R: P, V)

"PHONE BOOTH" (July 8): A publicist (Colin Farrell) is trapped in a Manhattan telephone booth by an anonymous sniper who threatens to shoot him if he tries to leave. (R: AS, P, V)

"CONFESSIONS OF A DANGEROUS MIND" (July 15): George Clooney's directorial debut stars Sam Rockwell as game-show mogul - and alleged CIA spy - Chuck Barris. (R: AS, P, V)

"GODS & GENERALS" (July 15): The roots of the Civil War are recalled in another epic from the makers of "Gettysburg." Robert Duvall and Jeff Daniels star. (PG-13: V)

BBC's Graham Norton has folks singing 'God Save the Queen'

By Jacqueline Cutler

His political barbs are as sharp as Jay Leno's, he relies on audience participation as much as Dave Letterman and, like Howard Stern, sex is never far from his main thrust. But the campy host of BBC America's "So Graham Norton" is very much his own man.

During a limited-run, one-man show at a theater in New York's East Village, Norton attributes his outfit of white slacks liberally sprinkled with silver glitter and matching top to "shopping while drunk." He then ribs an audience member for trying to take a photo of him. "All you'll get is a flash," he says. "People will say, 'Who did you go see - Jesus?'"

Forty and single, Norton is a huge hit in Great Britain, but unknown enough in the United States that he triggers nary a raised eyebrow while being interviewed in a Manhattan Starbucks. Here are highlights:

Q: Is there anywhere you won't go with your guests? Anything you won't ask?

A: I always promise them we are not going anywhere bad. ... We are not in the business of upsetting guests. It's like inviting over a vegetarian and serving meat.

Q: Was it tough growing up Protestant and gay in a 98 percent Roman Catholic neighborhood in the Republic of Ireland?

A: It was not so much difficult as odd. I grew up feeling different. I knew I was other, but I thought it was because I was Protestant. It was only when I left that I realized.

Q: When did you know the stage was your calling?

A: I was really young, about 4 or 5. Growing up in Ireland, there is no way of doing that. I did amateur productions. There was no real TV. I was encouraged by my parents that acting is a lovely hobby. I think we suffered a lot growing up because there's a real pressure to be doing something vocational, particularly if it's a job you hate. ... I failed the bank exam, then I failed to get into the college of journalism. I was a waiter for eight or nine years and my attitude became worse and worse, and by the end I was just vicious. You know how every restaurant has a nasty old queen? I was him. Sometimes you feel silly for making their life hell when all they wanted to do was get something to eat. I was just mean, mean, mean.

Q: At least the nastiness eventually resulted in your stand-up act, ultimately leading to your show. Didn't you also train as an actor?

A: I trained as an actor in Britain, but I never really worked. I hadn't trained to be an actor. I trained to be a star.

Q: You certainly dress like a star. How many suits do you have, and where do you find such Liberace-inspired togs?

A: I'm trying to find an appropriate way of dressing as a 40-year-old. There's a lady who works on the show who makes them. I don't know how many, there's kind of a rolling stock. We send them to charity auctions. We'll take suits and get them customized.

Q: Who are your sartorial influences?

A: I dress like a magpie. I love shiny things, women in those amazing shimmering gowns.

Q: You're quite out about being gay. Is there anyone you would like to see back in the closet?

A: There are quite a few British politicians you don't particularly want, particularly conservative ones. How can you be conservative and gay? It seems extraordinary to me.

Q: Who were your favorite guests?

A: Iconic ones. I want to talk to them about their hits. Occasionally, I have young guests, but all they've done is

Q: Who were your favorite guests?

A: Iconic ones. I want to talk to them about their hits. Occasionally, I have young guests, but all they've done is get famous. Dolly (Parton), she's amazing, she exudes happiness. Cher. Sophia Loren, she was a really great guest; she was a bit nervous. She looks fantastic. She is an ad for not being too thin and an ad for olive oil.

Q: For each guest, you play some nutty game, such as Whoopi Goldberg yelling at passengers via a hidden webcam in a taxi, or Roseanne helping siblings extract revenge on each other. How do you come up with these ideas?

A: We have four teams working, and each is given a guest and puts together a show. We come up with games or stunts.

Q: Who were your worst guests?

A: Often, when a guest doesn't work out, you blame yourself. Lindsay Wagner. She just didn't play the game. She had seen the tapes. She accepted the invitations and then refused to play the games. I didn't try to dupe her. I was annoyed.

Q: You seem to relish being frank about sexuality on the show, and you certainly push the envelope. Do you get in trouble?

A: It was newish, even in Britain. We have sort of broken rules. The only time I got a lot of complaints was on the first series. Those people rather cleverly stopped watching.

Q: Even by the standards of your show, which are so much looser than even premium cable's, what has been the wackiest moment?

A: We did a woman with a webcam who played "God Save the Queen" on a penny whistle - not using her mouth.

Graham Norton's show on BBC America, "So Graham Norton," has been a huge hit in Great Britain since 1997, where he has garnered many awards. The talk show airs weeknights.
